SUMMARY.

Rome correspondents report that the Italians are heroically resisting the Austro-German invaders.

The latest news from the front, the United Press Agency correspondent says, has aroused the whole capital.

The people are convinced, he says, that the invasion can be stemmed.

An official despatch received in Washington states that the Italians are holding the enemy everywhere.

It is reported the Germans hoped to capture Venice, and force peace by threatening to ruin the city, or hand it over to Austria.

An Italian communique reports that strong attacks against advanced posts in the Doane and Giumella valleys have been repulsed.

It is reported the Tagliamento battle has begun, and is likely to continue violently for some time.

Mr. Lloyd George has gone to Italy, accompanied by General Smuts (War Cabinet), and Sir William Robertson (Chief of Staff).

The British offensive movement in Southern Palestine, in which large bodies of Australasian troops are participating, continues.

The British on Thursday night took the Turkish first line on a front of three miles west and south-west of Gaza.

Mr. Massey, correspondent of the London "Daily Telegraph," says an Australian mounted force was the first to enter Beersheba.

They charged with bayonets and rifles, overwhelmed the Turks, and galloped cheering into the town.

A British official report says the captures at Beersheba included 15 guns. The prisoners taken at Gaza numbered 444.

A French communique says artillery activity is very marked in the Chemin-des-Dames and in the Pinon and Vauxaillon regions.

After violent bombardment, the Germans twice attacked at Chaume Wood, but French fire dispersed them with heavy losses.

The Germans have issued a semi-official explanation of the withdrawal of their armies from the Chemin-des-Dames front.

According to this the withdrawal was decided on "in order to prevent unnecessary bloodshed."

Field-Marshal Haig reports that the Irish Fusiliers made a successful raid to the south-westward of Havrincourt.

Two enemy attempts to raid in the neighbourhood of Monchy le Preux were repulsed.

The British carried out a successful raid east of Gavrelle, taking prisoners and machine-guns.

Professor Pares has commented on M. Kerensky's statement that Russia is worn out.

The successes and failures of the Russians have, he says, entailed a loss of from half to three-quarters of their effectives.

These losses were sustained without grumbling. Russia has paid in men what she lacked in munitions.

Russia's losses have, he declares, been far more terrible than those of the other Allies.

Professor Pares says that he is now more hopeful that Russia will yet discharge her part in the war.

The Russian Ambassador in Washington states that assertions that Russia will quit the war are malicious.

The Russians are now holding 147 enemy divisions, he points out. Only seven divisions have been diverted to Italy.

There has been a further British success in Mesopotamia, 89 Turks being captured.

It is expected the New German Chancellor will make a statement in the Reichstag on November 22 regarding peace terms.

Mr. Hughes announced yesterday that he proposed to organise industry for war and post-war purposes.

There will be a general council of commerce and industry, composed of representatives from various associations.

There is to be a department of commerce and industry, and a Minister for commerce and industry.

A first-class business man will be appointed as permanent head, with experts representing primary and secondary industries.

The Science and Industry Bureau, placed on a permanent basis, will be an integral part of the organisation.

Trade representatives are to be appointed in the principal overseas markets.

"The war has taught us many lessons by which, if we are wise, we shall profit," Mr. Hughes said.

It had been made clear, he added, that an unorganised industry could not compete with one that was organised.

Efforts to induce Mr. Hughes to express an opinion yesterday on the question of conscription failed.

All he would say was that the matter of recruiting would be considered by the Government in the near future.

Professor Macintyre says several recruiting committees have threatened to disband as a protest against the voluntary system.

Mr. Peake, the South Australian Premier, says that the people are at last realising that a life and death struggle is going on.

In his opinion conscription was the only democratic, just, and effective method of getting the required men.

The sum subscribed to the Liberty Loan, which closed on Friday, was approximately £20,000,000.

This is exclusive of £554,000 derived from the sale of War Savings Certificates.

The total sum raised in Australia by the five war loans already floated is practically £100,000,000.

There will be contests in all but about a dozen constituencies at the Victorian elections on November 15.

Only one Minister (Mr. Lawson) has been given a walk-over.

Recruiting figures show that the volunteers throughout the State last week totalled 577. Of these 286 were accepted for service.

A hundred thousand people attended a demonstration in Melbourne, presided over by Archbishop Mannix, to discuss the Irish situation.

A resolution was carried that representatives of Ireland should be invited to attend the peace conference.

Another resolution declared that the meeting stood for "an undivided Ireland."

At the City Council voting was equal on a proposal that another sum of £1000 be allocated to the Distress Fund.

The Lord Mayor gave his casting vote in favour of referring the matter to the finance committee.

The Rev. R. Hall, superintendent of the mission station at Mornington Island, Gulf of Carpentaria, has been murdered by blacks.

Mr. Owen, Mr. Hall's assistant, was wounded by the blacks, but escaped in a boat to the mainland.

The 350th casualty list, issued yesterday, contains 1359 names, 339 having been killed in action.

In addition, 167 have died of wounds, 684 have been wounded, and 34 are missing.

In the New South Wales section of the list, 45 men are reported "wounded second occasion" and 9 "wounded third occasion."

The trial of the strike leaders for alleged conspiracy was begun at the Central Criminal Court yesterday.

The filling of the vacancy caused by the death of Mr. Milne, Deputy Railway Commissioner, will be decided to-morrow.

Jute was slow yesterday. Branbags sold at 9s net to rails. Cornsacks sold to storekeepers at 9s 6d net to rails.

The oil market was quiet. Rates were without alteration from those ruling last week.

There was an improved demand for new-laid eggs, and some agents secured 1s a dozen for the best samples.

Little interest was displayed in mining propositions on the Stock Exchange yesterday, and a limited turnover was effected.

Investment stocks changed hands steadily, however, and firm prices prevailed throughout.

Forecast.—Hot, sultry conditions, with squally northerly, giving place to a gale, and squally southerly change; fine in western district, but further scattered rains and thunderstorms in eastern half of the State, some hail likely.

BELMORE WARD, CITY OF SYDNEY.
NOTICE is hereby given that an ELECTION of ONE ALDERMAN for BELMORE WARD, to fill a vacancy caused by the death of the late Alderman Denis Gullen, under the provisions of the Sydney Corporation Act, 1902, and the Sydney Corporation Amendment Act, 1913, and the Sydney Corporation Amendment Act, 1917, will take place on WEDNESDAY, the fourteenth day of November, 1917.
R. D. MEAGHER, Lord Mayor.
Town Hall, Sydney,
November 2, 1917.

MUNICIPAL ELECTION.
EXTRAORDINARY VACANCY.
BELMORE WARD, CITY OF SYDNEY.
PUBLIC NOTICE is hereby given that an ELECTION of ONE ALDERMAN for BELMORE WARD, in the City of Sydney, to fill a Vacancy caused by the death of the late Alderman Denis Gullen, will be held on WEDNESDAY, the fourteenth day of November, 1917, and that Nominations must be made in writing to the undersigned at the Town Hall, George-street, Sydney, on and after MONDAY, the fifth day of November, 1917, and until noon on FRIDAY, the ninth day of November, 1917.
It is further notified that each Nomination Paper for the said Ward must be signed by not less than TWO Citizens qualified to vote in the Ward, and that the consent of the person nominated, signed by such person, must accompany the same.
The residence of all such parties must also be stated on the Nomination Papers.
Candidates are particularly required to note that, under the Provisions of Section 22 of the Sydney Corporation Act, 1902, it is enacted as follows:—
1. No candidate at any election shall expend, either by himself or his agent, more than Fifty Pounds in connection with such election, and the details of such expenditure, verified by Statutory Declaration, shall be furnished to the Town Clerk within seven days after the holding of an election.
2. Any candidate who expends more than the said Fifty Pounds in connection with any such election, or fails to furnish details of his expenditure within the time limited in the last preceding section, shall be liable to a penalty of Twenty Pounds, to be recovered in a summary manner in any Court of competent jurisdiction, and if elected such election shall be void.
THOMAS H. NESBITT,
Town Clerk,
Returning Officer.
Town Hall, Sydney,
November 2, 1917.

WHY DON'T YOU TRY KOKO FOR DANDRIFF ?

"I am delighted with Koko for the hair. I never used anything else that did not make my hair in an awful mess, so that the cleanness of Koko was quite a surprise to me, considering how good it is for Dandriff."

"Koko is the cleanest preparation for the hair I ever used. It is wonderfully good for dandriff, and gives great relief when the head is hot and uncomfortable. The first bottle of Koko cleared away the dandriff, and my hair is now beautifully soft and glossy and quite wavy."

"One small bottle of Koko cleared away the dandriff on my head, although it had been very thick. Every day I found my head getting cleaner, and now my hair is in good condition again."

(Names given on request.)

Have You Tried KOKO on a Hot Day?

It is in warm weather that one best realises the full worth of Koko for the hair. Not only is its exquisite cleanness more evident, but the cool, refreshing effect of Koko on the scalp is more fully appreciated, a liberal application of Koko, followed by brisk brushing, leaving the scalp aglow with a delightful sensation of healthful cleanness.

The most conclusive way to prove the worth of Koko to you is to get

A 4/6 Trial Bottle of Koko for 2/-

from the Koko Depot, 2nd floor, Denison House, 330 George-street (near King-street). Entrance to lift between Pattison's and McDowells'. Postage 1s extra. Postal Notes should be sent made payable to Koko Maricopas Co. Use this concession Coupon.

Does the Thought of Work Worry You

Nervous Breakdowns are frequent amongst business men just now. The non-arrival of goods, the inability to obtain or supply orders, the worry of finance all tend to bring on nerve troubles. Just as the over worked body needs rest and nourishment so the overworked brain—a delicate organ at any time—requires the same.

Fishers Phospherine

OWNERSHIP OF A POLICY.

Beard v Perpetual Trustee Company, Ltd.

Mr. Maughan and Mr. Weston, instructed by Mr. F. W. Walker, appeared for the appellants (defendants); and Mr. Jordan and Mr. H. H. Mason, instructed by Mr. H. O. Marshall, for the plaintiff (respondent). This was an appeal by the defendant company against the decision of the Chief Judge in Equity on July 30 in a suit brought against appellants by Samuel John Bryce Beard. The question in dispute in the suit concerned the ownership of a policy of insurance taken out in the A.M.P. Society on January 5, 1897, in the name and on the life of the plaintiff, for £2000. The plaintiff was then an infant, and the policy was taken out by him with moneys supplied by his grandmother, Harriett Beard, who stood in loco parentis to him, and who afterwards paid all the premiums on the policy till her death in 1906. On March 28, 1898, plaintiff, who was then of age, executed an absolute assignment to Mrs. Beard of the policy without any consideration, and at her request. It appeared that before the assignment was executed, plaintiff, during a trip to New Zealand, became engaged to a young lady, of whom he knew nothing, and upon his return to Sydney he informed his grandmother of the engagement. She, under the belief that he was being blackmailed, induced him to assign the policy to her for his protection. The question at issue in the suit was whether the policy was a portion of Mrs. Beard's estate, or was really the property of the plaintiff. His Honor, in his decree, found that the policy was assigned by plaintiff to his grandmother for his own protection, and not for Mrs. Beard's benefit; and that she took it as trustee for him. His Honor added that it was clear that the Statute of Limitations did not apply, and that the evidence showed that the premiums on the policy after Mrs. Beard's death had been paid out of income which belonged to the plaintiff. He therefore declared that Harriett Beard took the assignment as trustee for the plaintiff, and not otherwise, and that all payments of premiums made by her in respect of the policy up to the date of her death were advancements of the plaintiff, and enured for his benefit. The defendants, who are trustees of Mrs. Beard's estate, now appealed, mainly on the grounds—(1) That there was not sufficient evidence to support the decree, having regard to the fact that the claim of the plaintiff was a claim against the estate of a deceased person, and that the decree was against evidence and weight of evidence.

The case stands part heard.

NOVEL CHARGE.

Gilmour v Bastian.

Mr. L. Armstrong, instructed by Mr. J. W. Maund, appeared for appellant Gilmour, and Mr. Milner Stephen, instructed by Messrs. Ash and Maclean, for the defendant, Bastian. This was an appeal from the determination of Mr. G. H. Smithers, S.M., in a proceeding before him at North Sydney Police Court on September 13, in which George John Gilmour was complainant and Alfred Arthur Copeland Bastian defendant. The information against the latter was that on June 30 last a contested election was held for the choice of aldermen for the council of the municipality of Willoughby, and that at such election defendant, who was returning officer, did not cause to be counted in his presence, and subject to his supervision, the votes recorded for each candidate at each polling place, contrary to ordinance governing the matter. Counsel for defendant at the hearing submitted that a prosecution for such an offence could not be instituted or carried on by any person not having authority to prosecute on behalf of the council. The magistrate upheld the objection, and dismissed the information. The complainant now appealed, on the ground that the magistrate's decision was erroneous in law. It appeared that Gilmour was not an officer of the Willoughby Council, but one of the candidates at the election, and Mr. Stephen, in opposition to the present appeal, contended that under the Local Government Act the power to take proceedings in such matters was confined to officers of the local governing body, and was not conferred by law on citizens generally. Nor was that power conferred upon them by the Fines and Penalties Act.

His Honor said it was admitted that the information was not laid under the authority of the Municipal Council of Willoughby, and the question was whether the decision of the magistrate was erroneous in point of law. That depended upon the provisions of the Fines and Penalties Act, 1901, section 4 of which provided that "any fine, penalties, or forfeiture imposed by any Act may be sued and proceeded for by any person, unless such right to sue or proceed is expressly given to any person by name or designation." After referring to section 191 and contiguous sections of the Local Government Act of 1906, upon which counsel for respondent relied, his Honor said that in his opinion the penalty might be sued for and recovered by any person who chose to proceed, although the penalty when recovered must be distributed in a certain way. He, therefore, upheld the appeal, and directed the special case to be remitted to the magistrate with the intimation that his decision was erroneous in law; appellant to have his costs of the appeal.

INDUSTRIAL ARBITRATION COURT.

(Before Mr. Justice Heydon.)

LETTERPRESS MACHINISTS.

This was an application by the Master Printers and Connected Trades Association for an award in the printing trades group No. 5 (letterpress machinists). Mr. J. Stuart Thom appeared for the applicants, and Messrs. C. A. Coghlan and Co. for the Letterpress Machinists' Union. After evidence and argument, his Honor dismissed the application.

(Before Judge Bolin.)

WHARF LABOURERS AND STEVEDORES.

This was a reference to the Court by the Minister for Labour and Industry for inquiry into the existing conditions of wharf labourers and stevedores in Port Jackson. The reference was part-heard last week, and adjourned to enable the parties to confer. Mr. J. A. Ferguson, who appeared for the Minister, stated that the parties had met and drawn up a tentative award. The rate of pay for constant employees was fixed at £3/1/6 for a week of 46 hours. Casuals were to be paid at the rate of 1/9 an hour. Special rates were settled for holidays and overtime. For ordinary holidays and Sundays 3/6 an hour; for extraordinary holidays (Christmas Day, Good Friday, Eight-hour Day, and Picnic Day), 5/ an hour. The working hours and limit of weights to be carried were also fixed.

In adopting the award, his Honor said that the failure to employ constant workers had been due to the action of the union, combined with the preference clause. If the employers desired to employ constant hands there was no reason why they should not do so, and no reason why an award should not be made providing for such a case. This port, added his Honor, was notorious for its pilfering of cargo, and he had yet to learn that the Waterside Workers' Federation had in any way assisted to put this down. The union was a consenting party to certain successful strikes in which the shipowners had to give way. In the late general strike the union joined in, as ostensibly carrying out its doctrine of refusal to handle "black" goods. Nothing was more likely to lead to breaches of industrial peace than the fact that a union learns by experience the fatal lesson that no matter what its conduct may be, no matter what injury it may cause the community by strikes, it can return to all its old privileges whenever it seems fit. The Court could, and ought, to make this award. An exemption from the award was made in the case of the Vacuum Oil Proprietary Co., Ltd.

The complete list of the appearances appeared last Thursday.

DISTRICT COURT.

(Before Judge Backhouse.)

COMMISSION CLAIM.

Bryant v Rofe.

Hector Norman Bryant and Edward Trevor Giblin, trading as Bryant and Giblin, of 121 Pitt-street, Sydney, estate agents, claimed £34/1/ commission from Thomas Ernest Rofe, on the letting of a shop in Castlereagh-street, Sydney. The defence was that the plaintiffs were not the letting agents of the defendant, as alleged. Mr. D. S. Edwards, instructed by Mr. Edgar Lucas, appeared for the plaintiffs, and Mr. S. Mack, instructed by Messrs. A. Rofe and Sons, for the defendant.

His Honor found in favour of the defendant.

NEGLIGENT CYCLE DRIVING.

Egan v Du Prees.

Thomas Stephen Egan, of Sydney-street, Willoughby, proceeded against Isaac Du Prees, of Beauchamp-parade, Chatswood, for negligent driving of a motor cycle, which struck and injured plaintiff severely. £60 compensation was claimed. The defence was a denial of negligence. Mr. H. E. M'Intosh appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. Hammond, instructed by Messrs. David L. Aitken and Barron, for the defendant.

His Honor gave the plaintiff a verdict for £45.

CYCLIST AND DOG.

Kennedy v Crawley.

David James Kennedy, of 394 Parramatta-road, Petersham, sued Sarah May Crawley, of Canterbury-road, Canterbury, for £150 damages. The plaintiff's case was that, while he was proceeding on his motor-cycle along the Canterbury-road, the defendant's dog rushed out and caused plaintiff to be thrown from his machine. The defendant denied liability. Mr. Breckenridge, instructed by Messrs. A. J. M'Donald and Kemmis, appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. Alec Thomson, instructed by Messrs. Gill and Oxlade, for the defendant.

A verdict was returned for the plaintiff for £35.

MOTOR-CAR ACCIDENT.

Hailstone v Adrian.

Thomas Hailstone, of 28 Victoria-parade, Manly, sued Gordon Adrian, of the Corso, Manly, for alleged negligence, whereby the plaintiff sustained injuries through the defendant's mismanagement of a motor car. £50 damages was claimed. The defendant denied negligence. Mr. O'Reilly, instructed by Mr. J. B. Frawley, appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. Maxwell, instructed by Mr. H. A. Langley, for the defendant.

His Honor found a verdict for the defendant.

CRIMINAL COURT.

(Before Mr. Justice Pring.)

CHARGE OF MURDER.

Vera Kathleen Search was charged with the murder of an infant at Leichhardt on September 4, 1917. She was defended by Mr. Maddocks Cohen.

The Crown Prosecutor (Mr. Harris) said they were not ready to proceed with the case.

Mr. Maddocks Cohen said the accused had been in gaol for over four weeks. A coroner's inquiry had been held, and an open verdict returned. In view of the finding, he asked that the accused be admitted to bail.

His Honor said the application could be made to another Justice. The accused would be remanded till November 26.

ALLEGED CONSPIRACY.

The case against Edward John Kavanagh, Claude Thompson, Albert Charles Willis, and Arthur William Buckley for conspiracy is reported in another column.

QUARTER SESSIONS.

(Before Judge Docker and a Jury.)

Herbert Allen and Alfred Ernest Bishop were charged with having, on October 5, at Newtown, in company, assaulted Benjamin Francis Routledge, and robbed him of a watch and chain, and money to the value of £4 5s, his property. The accused each pleaded not guilty. Bishop was defended by Mr. E. R. Abigail. The evidence for the prosecution showed that the accused and the prosecutor were in the bar of a hotel. They did not enter the hotel in each other's company, but a conversation ensued. After the men had left the hotel the Crown alleged that the accused in company knocked the prosecutor down, rendering him unconscious, and that they then robbed him of his watch, chain, and money. None of the property had been recovered. The defence was a straight-out denial of assault and robbery.

The jury convicted Allen, but found Bishop not guilty. Allen was remanded for sentence, and Bishop was discharged.

MOTOR CAR STOLEN.

Between 1 a.m. and 9 a.m. yesterday a small grey Calthorpe motor-car, belonging to Mr. Russell Jones, was stolen from a garage at "Duncreval," New South Head-road, Woollahra. The thieves gained an entrance to the garage by bursting a lock off the door.

POLICE COURTS.

PUGILIST FINED FOR ASSAULT.

At the Central Police Court yesterday, before Mr. Smithers, S.M., David Kerr, proceeded against Sydney James Ryan, on two informations alleging assault and threatening language. Ryan also proceeded against Kerr, alleging that the latter had used insulting words to him.

Kerr gave evidence to the effect that he was a bookmaker, and also proprietor of the "Variety Show World," but was not sole owner. On October 23 he was talking to some ladies in Brook-street, Coogee. Ryan came up in a threatening manner and asked witness why he had put his name in the paper. Witness replied that he had done nothing of the kind. Ryan then struck him on the arm. He remembered a certain article appearing in the paper. There were two or three other boxing instructors at Coogee. Ryan had his own gymnasium, and was a pugilist. Witness was honestly afraid that defendant would do him some harm.

Sydney James Ryan gave evidence to the effect that he was a boxing instructor, and carried on business in Alfreda-street, Coogee. For some time he had noticed disparaging remarks about himself in Kerr's paper. He denied having committed the assault. Witness had been a pugilist for many years, but it was 27 years since he had fought.

For the assault Ryan was fined £1 and costs, and for the threatening language was ordered to enter into a recognisance to keep the peace for twelve months. The information against Kerr alleging insulting words was dismissed.

ALLEGED OPIUM STEALING.

Charles Ernest Beale was committed for trial at the Central Police Court yesterday on a charge of having on October 23 stolen a leather bag, containing 84 tins of opium, of the value of £210, the property of Lee H. Cheong.

SYLVIA.

BY L. G. MOBERLY.

[ALL RIGHTS RESERVED.]

CHAPTER VIII.—Continued.

Again the stranger smiled at Sylvia's quaint reproduction of Mrs. Day's remarks, and the child ran on: "I'm Mr. John's ward. Dad and Mr. John were old friends, and when they were young they both went to the same hospital. My Dad was a doctor, too, same as Mr. John—only Dad had lots of patients. I don't think he went to pieces like Mr. John did."

"I don't expect he did," the Rector answered. "And where did you live before you came to Marshdale—before you were Mr. John's ward? You haven't told me Mr. John's other name, by the way."

Sylvia laughed her clear, amused laugh, and its infectious ring made the Rector laugh too.

"I believe I've got my brain muzzy, like Mrs. Day says hers is when she forgets things," the child exclaimed. "Mr. John is really Dr. Camberley, and his house is in Draper-street, just at top of the lane. Mrs. Day let's me come down here to the churchyard sometimes, and into the meadows. She says it makes a change from the garden."

"But even now you haven't told me your name, or where you lived before you came here," her companion said, and again Sylvia laughed.

"My tongue gets running on, doesn't it?" she said, with another unconscious imitation of Mrs. Day. "My name's Sylvia Brentwood, and I used to live in South Africa with Dad, until he died. I can't remember what my mother was like; she died when I was a teeny baby, so it was always just Dad and me, and now it's Mr. John and me."

"And does Mr. John goes to St. James' church, too? Did he not care for the rector who mumbled?"

"Sometimes Mr. John comes to church, too—only he says he's got a bit out of the way of it, and he doesn't feel like it often. I call him Mr. John because he's my guardian, and I love him better than anybody in the world. I suppose"—Sylvia hesitated and her voice grew very wistful—"I suppose you couldn't tell people about him wanting patients, could you? We do want to get the patients together again. It's rather bad for Mr. John not to have any. And you can't think what a dear he is, only he's got disheartened." Henry Symonds looked into Sylvia's grey eyes, and, looking into them, he reflected what a tender heart lay behind them.

"The child is a born mother," he thought; "she is bound to be always taking care of somebody or something." Aloud he answered—

"We must see what can be done; I will think it over and try to help. But I think, if I were you, I wouldn't say anything to Mr. John about our having talked over it. Let it be a splendid secret between you and me, a splendid surprise for Mr. John."

Sylvia clasped her hands ecstatically.

"A splendid surprise when we get the patients for him?" she exclaimed. "Oh! that would be just simply lovely. I like secrets that turn out splendid surprises. Sometimes Dad and I used to have them, when we wanted to do things for Mrs. Tolworth—our neighbour. And I should think"—she looked earnestly into her new friend's face—"I should think you could keep a secret."

"I believe I can. I think you may trust me."

"You've got such kind eyes," Sylvia went on. "The very first thing I saw when you sat down here was that you had such kind eyes. There was a lady who came to see Mr. John once—oh! it was not long after I first came—and her eyes weren't kind, even though she was lovely like a princess. But yours are kind, and I should think you liked little girls."

The wistfulness in her voice did not escape the rector's ears.

"Yes, I like little girls very much," he said, "and I am glad we met here to-day. Perhaps you will come and see me at the rectory, if Mr. John will allow you. I must call and ask him to spare you some time."

"Oh! my goodness, I should like to come." Sylvia was nearly breathless with delight. "I suppose you haven't any little girls of your own that I could play with, have you?" she added with hope in her voice. A shadow crossed the kindly eyes.

"No—I have no little girls—now," he said gently. "Once upon a time I had a little daughter—about as big as you are, but she and her mother are both waiting for me in Paradise."

"I hope they know Daddy there," Sylvia said softly. "I'd like him to have another little girl to be loving to him now he hasn't got me any more. And I'll be your friend if you like," she added.

"I should like it very much." Henry Symonds smile flashed out again, and it was a very winning smile. "I daresay you have a great many friends."

"Well, not so many as I should like," she answered with a shake of the head. "I should like ever such a number, but you see Mr. John doesn't know hardly any people, and he doesn't much approve of me having a lot of friends. I think he's got his own views about bringing me up," she added; "still, I've got some friends—and I do like people better than anything else in the world, don't you? What I like best is loving people and doing things for them. Mr. John lets me go and see the people that live in the lane there"—she nodded towards the row of houses that ran past the churchyard wall towards the meadows and the river—"and they're every one of them my friends. Old Betty she's got the rheumatism something cruel, and Mr. John gave me some stuff to take to her when I told him about it; and Mrs. Heniidge she's awfully worried about the twins because they don't seem to get on, and so Mr. John lets me take them milk every day; and Mrs. Tranley can't seem to get her sick daughter any better, but I expect she'll do now, because Mrs. Day and me are making wonderful strong soup for her."

The blue eyes watching the child's eager face grew a little misty, as she poured forth her tale, couched partly in her own language, partly in that of the cottages; and a smile hovered over his lips, as he looked away from her and across the meadowlands basking in the afternoon sunlight of July.

"The people in those cottages are my parishioners," he said; "I want to make friends with them all, too. Perhaps sometimes you and I could go together to see them, and in any case you must come and have tea at the rectory, if Mr. John will give leave; and when you come, we will talk about our secret and our splendid surprise."

That same evening Henry Symonds wended his way from his own rectory just above the little grey church and the churchyard that sloped to the meadows, and called upon the Rev. Thomas Ransom, vicar of St. James, th identical church which Mrs. Day and Sylvia had attended on Sundays during the reign of the mumbling rector of St. Luke's. To Henry Symonds—gentle, unconventional, and simple—Thomas Ransom was not particularly congenial, but he was a very old resident of Marshdale, and the newcomer had more than once gone to St. James' vicarage for information and help. Mr. Ransom's stiff and orderly study always gave Henry Symonds an odd feeling of being back again at school in the presence of his house-master, and indeed there was more than a little of the pedagogue in Thomas Ransom's manner and appearance; and his greeting to the other clergyman lacked warmth and geniality.

"I shall be glad to do anything I can to help you," he said in his rather pompous voice. "Marshdale is not a very easy place for a newcomer. There are several sets here, and one has to be careful about them. People do not like overlapping, and one must not offend their susceptibilities. Cliques are difficult to manage."

"I should like to see them totally abolished," the Rector of St. Luke's answered, with a twinkle in his blue eyes; "a clique is a deadly affair."

"Ah, well, well, one must go slowly, and not offend prejudices. After all, in a small place we do not wish people to tread on one another's toes, and we are bound to consider the views of different classes. One does not desire an undue mixture of classes; it never answers."

"I wonder why," Symonds answered with apparent innocence; "and I wonder what precisely is meant by an undue mixture of classes. I should be inclined to think that the more classes drew together and understood one another, the better in every possible way."

"I do not agree with you." Over Thomas Ransom's florid, rather hard face there crept an expression of obstinacy. "There are certain barriers wisely erected by those who went before us—barriers which, in my opinion, it would be most injudicious for us to throw down. Possibly you are a Radical?" he added, speaking very much as if he were alluding to a peculiarly venomous reptile.

"Politics are not very much in my line"—Henry Symonds smiled his disarming smile—"but I feel we lay too much stress on the differences between human beings, and not enough on the likenesses. I have very little belief in creating barriers."

"You wish to level everybody into a deadly equality, I suppose?" There was a sneer in Mr. Ransom's voice, but the other man paid no heed to the sneer.

"Equality is for ever impossible," he answered gently, "but I should like as few barriers as need be, and as many equal opportunities for all as can be managed. But I did not come to worry you with abstract questions. I thought perhaps you could tell me something of a parishioner of mine, Dr. Camberley."

ON THE LAND.

TARCUTTA ESTATE.

Since leaving the Loyalist camp in Sydney, where he put in a couple of months' strenuous toil, a well-known Murrumbidgee farmer has paid a visit to the Tarcutta estate, which was recently purchased by the Government in connection with the scheme for settling soldiers on the land. The foreman in charge is Mr. J. T. Winterbottom, an experienced mixed farmer, with a wide knowledge of Riverina conditions, and he appears to be well satisfied that the Government made a good deal when it secured this property. The visitor mentioned is also of the same opinion, and says the rich valleys of the Tarcutta Creek are fit to grow almost anything. With ringbarking, even the land that is classified as only third-class should turn out well for grazing and sheep-farming, providing it comes into the hands of the right type of settler. The railway running through the estate, almost from end to end, does much to enhance its value, and provide an asset. At present the country looks magnificent. Grass is abundant. A great deal of money has been expended in fighting the rabbits, which find the mountainous portion of this estate favourable for burrowing and breeding. But with closer settlement the rabbit usually has to get out or be exterminated. There is a considerable quantity of valuable timber on the estate. Gum trees on the Tarcutta Creek are among the largest in trunk development to be found in Australia. There is ample timber on the land for fencing and building purposes. Up to now soldiers and gangs of men have been chiefly employed in ringbarking, scrubbing, and digging out rabbits. The greatest difficulty our correspondent sees facing the settlement is the amount of money the settlers will have with which to start operations. Those who have cash on hand should find no difficulty in pulling through, aided by the sum allotted to them. But the less fortunate will probably experience considerable difficulty in making ends meet.

He writes:—"When a settler buys cows at £14 per head, or more, a very small herd will make a very large hole in his funds. Then there are working horses, harness, cow-yards, sheds, dwelling-house, tanks, etc., to be provided for, together with the money required for keeping the home going until there is some return from the land. It is a big contract that is ahead of these men—and I speak from personal experience. With dear labour, the high cost of living, and an over-abundance of the class of labour which may well be described as inefficient, the undertaking is not an easy one, even when the men start with an allotment of £500. At present there should be a living at either dairying, wool or wheat growing; and the land obtained at the price paid for Tarcutta should easily have a productive value greater than the amount paid for it. The big question is: Will the high prices for produce continue? If they do all should be well. Many of the men taking up blocks here are single; others are married, and in due time Tarcutta should become an important centre. A co-operative butter factory will probably be established, and in that event the whole of the profits should accrue to the settlers. Shares could easily be taken up by making levies on the monthly cream cheques. Personally, I think that on large areas, such as 800 to 1000 acres, the amount expended on boundary fences, also dwelling-houses, should be added to the cost of the land, as these become an assured asset. If this is not done the cost of such improvements will eat too deeply into the £500 allotted to the soldiers."

WHERE ARE THE CORNSACKS?

No definite official information as to the provision of a sufficient supply of cornsacks for the coming wheat harvest has been made available. This will not allay the anxiety of growers who are asking for bags, and cannot get them. Where are the cornsacks? We have complaints from farmers in different districts that they have written to various firms in Sydney ordering sacks, and have failed to receive any satisfaction, either as to price or delivery. These are cash orders. A Trundle farmer—this is an early district which will be harvesting shortly, if a start has not already been made—states that he has written to several firms ordering two bales (600 bags), and has been unable to obtain them. In another centre we are informed a storekeeper, wishing to obtain a supply for local farmers, was quoted 10/ on trucks, Sydney. This is the proclaimed retail price. How can a storekeeper handle bags under such conditions? The proclaimed price to the storekeeper is 9/6 on rails, Sydney. In every way the position appears most unsatisfactory, and while it can be depended upon that the authorities will protect the farmers as regards the price, even if there should be a shortage, it is time active steps were taken to see they are supplied, as time is short.

THE WHEAT PROBLEM.

Mr. W. L. Boyce writes:—We have an enormous quantity of wheat in Australia. It is estimated that after next harvest this will amount to 6,000,000 tons. Huge quantities are deteriorating, and much wasting. Unless some use is soon made of the inferior wheat much of it will have to be burnt or otherwise destroyed. Yet it is difficult for the poultry farmer to buy wheat, bran, or pollard. The wheat supplied him is never good, and often very bad, at 4/10 to 5/2 per bushel, while the bran and pollard are not what they used to be. I ordered bran and pollard from the mill, and was told they could not supply it, but might be able to do so in a few days' time.

Large quantities of our wheat must be milled in Australia, and we must lose no time in starting on the work. Apart from what might be done in erecting new mills, those now in existence should be run two and three shifts. If the proprietors are not loyal enough to do the job, let the Government declare this a national emergency, and take over the mills, as it did the coal mines, and work them in a similar manner. As for storage of flour, there must, under present circumstances, be any amount of floor spaces available. Having the wheat ground here would give us ample supplies of bran and pollard, which would stimulate the poultry industry and pig-raising. The wheat that is beyond redemption should be sold at its value, which is much below the fixed price.

When a business man sees his stock deteriorating he says that the first loss is the best, and sells that stock at a price that will command a ready sale. The Government, by selling the inferior wheat at its present value, though under cost price, would not only prevent a greater loss but aid industries which are producing food for the people.

QUESTION OF PRICE.

Mr. E. S. Twigg, Cowra, writes:—Two years ago Mr. Hughes seized the wheat at 4/9, less expenses; last year he did the same, and this year he offers 4/. The other day when asked by the Harden farmers for an increase in price to 4/6, Mr. Hughes predicted the future wheat price after the war at 3/6, which he said would be a good price. Yet America has guaranteed her farmers 8/4 for every bushel they can grow, and England about 10/. Had conscription won the day it would have saved many of the experienced wheat growers and farmers, who have gone to the front, and left their land lying idle. Mr. Hughes should be pensioned, and so give the country a chance partly to save the effects of bad legislation. Last year I grew 800 bags of wheat for the fun of doing it, for it cost me more to harvest and put it into the pool than I have yet received for it. The dockages were over 1/ bushel. All I have yet received is 2/6 a bushel, and if the Australian millers are to handle same, it is all I am likely to get. Had I been free to ship it to England the dockage would not have exceeded /2 or /3 a bushel, judging by experts.

No man has held wheat more than I have for the past 20 years. Several times I have held it for periods of three years. I have just delivered 4000 bags of 1915 wheat, 93 per cent. of which weighed nearly 62lb to bushel, and 7 per cent. 54lb. A few bags were cleaned and sold as chick wheat at 3/6. Some bags had to be patched, but very few had to be replaced. Inexperienced men look at wheat stacks and make the wildest statements. The holding up of the wheat ships, lately, is again the result of inexperience. What harm could weevils do in a six weeks' voyage? Milling machines before grinding blow all weevils away. If practical men were at the head of wheat pools to-day they would guarantee that not one bag of this year's wheat would be milled till all our present wheat in the State is cleared. The farmers should hold all this year's wheat. It can be held in many ways:—1st, country silos; 2nd, build one row of bags around a building, and shoot wheat inside; 3rd, make a stack of wheat and shoot bags to fill all crevices, either inside or out. No mouse could enter. This could be covered with hay or straw, and if thatched will last for years. No wheat can be grown in Australia to-day under 5/ a bushel at country stations. The Government would be wise to offer 7/6 at least for all wheat grown for 1918.

PUBLIC SERVICE.

CADET EXAMINATIONS.

Mr. James Nangle, Superintendent of Technical Education, gave evidence yesterday before Mr. G. Mason Allard, Royal Commissioner, inquiring into the Public Service. Describing the courses and the diplomas at the Technical College, and the recognition now given to the certificates by public departments and private employers, Mr. Nangle urged that the courses should take the place of departmental examinations in connection with the Public Service. No one should be taken into the Public Service except on the basis of the leaving certificate of the High School, and then attendance at the diploma course of the Technical College should be compulsory. Apprentices in various trades had to attend them, and there was no reason why cadets in the Public Service should not do so at the beginning of their career. Many employers paid a bonus over award rates for good progress in the diploma course. He, therefore, thought the diploma course could well do away with departmental examinations, except such as dealt with merely routine work. Country cadets could be dealt with by a correspondence course, and occasional periods at the college. The operation of the minimum wage under the industrial laws made it necessary for a boy to be apprenticed at 15 or 16 years of age, and as the majority did not obtain their leaving certificate until they were 17 they were debarred from apprenticeship to a trade. There was, therefore, a good opportunity for securing a good lot of boys for the Public Service. Getting his certificate at 18, a youth would finish his diploma course at 22; the university student would be a year later, but, though lacking the practical training of the diploma student, would be in many ways equipped for his work. It would pay the Government to encourage the diploma students to go on to the university, and give them financial assistance if necessary—to pay their salaries whilst at the university.

John Michael Taylor, chairman of the Public Service Board, said an endeavour was made to get the best educated men and women available for employment in the service. The supply of candidates for employment with leaving certificates or at that standard was insufficient. At the 1915 examination on that standard 81 male candidates sat, and 53 passed; but, owing to the inducements offered to go to the university, only 31 accepted employment. The requirements in that year were roughly about 200. In 1916, there were 77 candidates; 45 were successful, and only 14 accepted employment. Consequently, the board had to fall back on the intermediate standard, and even the supply was then insufficient. He doubted if an increase of the initial salary would make the service more attractive to young men of 18, with a university course open to them. It was not true that the majority passed the intermediate examination at under 15; the majority were over that age, and a still larger proportion were over 16. Referring to the work of the departmental boards, Mr. Taylor said that out of 2217 cases, respecting salaries, there had been 193 appeals, and in 130 of them variations were made.

The Commissioner: Are you subject to Ministerial or Parliamentary pressure in respect of making appointments?—Generally speaking, no. Now and again a Minister has expressed a certain desire. We have just considered the matter, given due weight to the recommendations, and have turned the matter down, and refused to carry out his suggestion and written to him, telling him the reasons.

To your knowledge, has there ever been anything in the nature of political appointments to the services contrary to the wish of the board?—We have had cases where some appointments have taken place for certain purposes, and when those purposes have been served the direction of the board was that they should terminate. There were only two such cases. There had been cases in which recommendations were made to the board as to the necessity of filling certain positions, and when the board objected the matter was not proceeded with.

In grading and promotions, witness said, seniority was always secondary to fitness and came in only when other things were equal. He thought it was an advantage to retain men of over 65 if they were physically fit, though if a man was in moderately comfortable circumstances he might get only a couple of years longer, for he would be blocking the advancement of others, and would be looked askance at. None was kept on at the expense of efficiency; if a man was inefficient he had to go. The regulation that Public servants should not take an active part in political affairs was due to the board considering, in a general way, that they could not dissociate themselves from their employment and were likely to make use of information that came to them in their offices. And it did not appear quite dignified for a Public officer to be taking part in what were practically brawls during election time.

The Commissioner: Surely it is not infra dig. to be a candidate for Parliament.

The public sitting of the commission was adjourned sine die. The commissioner will meantime pursue personal investigation of the departments.

DELIVERY OF MAILS.

One of our representatives yesterday directed the attention of the postal authorities to a correspondent's letter, in which delay in the delivery of English mails was complained of as affecting a vessel whose mails, it was stated were not delivered until a Monday morning, although the boat arrived at daylight on the preceding Saturday. The authorities explain that the mails were not delivered at the G.P.O. until mid-day on the day of the boat's arrival, and that the English letters from that particular vessel were put in private boxes commencing at about 1.30 p.m., and, as far as practicable, up to 10.30 p.m., up to which hour there was a staff sorting the English mails. Furthermore, Sunday night's staff, which usually went on at 11 p.m., started at 9 p.m. on this particular occasion in order specially to cope with this vessel's mails.

A fire occurred at Thomson's cordial factory at Dunedin. The damage is estimated at between £7000 and £10,000.

THE JAPAN YEAR BOOK.

Many of the misunderstandings which arise between the various nations of the world may be traced to lack of knowledge of each other and now that half the world is allied against the greater part of the other half, it is incumbent upon us to learn as much as we can, particularly about our Allies. One nation to whom this sentiment particularly applies at the present time is Japan, who, besides being ranged on the side of the Entente Allies in the struggle for freedom and justice against the Central Powers, is every day extending her commercial influence in Australia and elsewhere in a way which will no doubt surprise Germany when once again her ships sally forth to win back the trade which she lost at the commencement of the war. No more compact and exhaustive collection of particulars and statistics regarding Japan could be desired than that contained in the twelfth annual publication of "The Japan Year Book," a copy of which has just reached us from the Sydney agents, Messrs. A. G. Baxter and Chatfield, of Bond-street. The volume is edited by Y. Takenob, and contains, besides a "Who's Who in Japan," particulars of Japanese history, geography, population, religion, politics, sport, railways, mercantile marine, banking, defence, diplomacy, trade, agriculture, mining, industry, finance, and a host of other subjects.

LONDON COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

The Sydney Town Hall was crowded in every part on the occasion of the eighteenth annual concert and distribution of diplomas, medals, and prizes in connection with the London College of Music, representative locally of centres in practically every part of the State. Mr. J. G. Edwards presided.

The chairman, in warmly complimenting the scholars and teachers alike upon the excellent results achieved during the year, said the college had been in existence for something like 30 years, and that it was about 15 years ago since the work of examining local candidates commenced. The status of the college could be judged from the fact that under its auspices examinations were conducted in all parts of the British dominions, although he believed that in no centre were there more candidates offering for examination than in Sydney. (Applause.) The chairman paid a special tribute to the work of the organising secretary (Mr. S. Chudleigh).

Encores were demanded of almost every contributor to the concert, and the set programme was practically doubled in length before the close of the evening. The proceeds of the concert are for the benefit of Sydney Hospital.

Mr. Anthony R. Book, Professor of Languages, Malvern (Vic), writes that he would not be without Clements Tonic in the house on any account. He tells his friends to take it.—Advt.

The Test of Quality

Is it possible to make an article too well? Can super-refinement be carried too far? We think not. There is a certain pride of construction which is best brought forth in the well-finished product.

It is our contention that the real craftsman works better under a manufacturing policy which demands not merely "good work"—but absolutely the "best" work. Right or wrong these are the conditions under which the Beale Pianos are made. The best—even to the extent of going further than seems absolutely necessary. That is the Beale policy.

Glueing on the Sound Board. This is a highly important part of Piano construction. The Sound Board may properly be described as the "soul" of the instrument, as upon its correct construction depends permanence of tone—without which the Piano would be worthless.

The Sound Board proper consists not merely of one board, but of many—delicately joined edge to edge. The timber is of a special nature, and great pains must be taken in its selection. The grain must be graded from coarse in the bass, where the vibrations of the steel strings are comparatively slow, to fine in the treble, where they are extremely fast.

SMITH.—In loving memory of my dear nephew and our dear cousin, John James, who died November 6, 1916.
Friends may think we have forgotten,
When at times they see us smile;
But they do not know the sorrow
That smile hides all the while.
For in life we loved him dearly,
And in death we do the same.
Inserted by his loving aunt, Mrs. Corbett, and family, and Mr. and Mrs. Piggott.

SMITH.—In loving memory of my dear, darling friend, John James Smith, who departed this life November 6, 1916, aged 27 years.
Twelve months have past away, dear Johnny,
Since you were called away,
There's one who lives and can't forget,
Your memory is here to stay.
Your true, good face I picture
As now I pen these lines,
And in my thoughts I often think
Of bygone happy times when we were together.
Inserted by a loving friend, Ada Kelly.

SMITH.—In fond memory of my dear friend, John James Smith, who departed this life 6th November, 1916. Not forgotten. Inserted by his sincere friend, Mrs. J. Bradley.

STAINTON.—In loving memory of our dear son and brother, Samuel Gill, who was accidentally drowned off South Head Gap (returned soldier) November 6, 1915. Gone, but not forgotten. Inserted by his loving father, mother, sister, and brother, Mabel and James.

STIRLING.—In loving memory of our dear son and brother, Sapper W. A. Stirling, killed in action, Fleurs, November 6, 1916.
Oh, God, grant us victory,
That his young life was not given in vain.
Inserted by his loving parents, brothers, Bob and Joe, and only sister, Lucy.

WALKER.—In loving memory of our dear sister, Mrs. A. Walker, who departed this life November 6, 1916.
Gone, but not forgotten.
Inserted by her loving sisters, Mrs. E. Barford and Miss M. Collins.

WARNOCK.—In loving memory of our dear mother, Kathleen Maud, who departed this life November 5, 1916. Inserted by her loving daughter and son-in-law, Nora and Jack Hill.

WARNOCK.—In loving memory of our dear aunt, who departed this life November 5, 1916. Inserted by her loving niece, Kitty, and nephews, Jim, Jack, Tom, and Willie (on active service).

WARREN.—In loving memory of our dear son, Aubrey Richard, munition worker, who was lost on the torpedoed steamer Arabia in the Mediterranean Sea, November 6, 1916. By his loving parents, Geo. H. and Martha Warren, Burwood, and Croydon Park.

WARREN.—In loving memory of my dear brother and cousin, Aubrey, who was lost on The Arabia. Deeply mourned by his sister and brother-in-law and cousin, Esther and Fred., and Lucy Carpenter.

WHITE.—Killed in action, November 6, 1916, Sergeant-Signaller D. H. (Don), the dearly-loved son of Edgar S. J. White, brother of Arthur (on active service), George (returned), Edgar, Tom, Harold. So sadly missed.
Only a bundle of letters,
All that is left for me;
But my darling who died for his country
Ever lives in my memory.
Only some lines from the trenches,
With the hand of the writer grown cold,
But the name on the paper is graven
In letters of shining gold.
Inserted by his lonely mother.

WHITE.—A tribute of love to the memory of my darling brother, Sgt.-sig. Donald H. White, killed in action France, November 6, 1916, aged 21. One of the best God ever sent.
In the din and roar of battle,
Midst the shot and shell,
Away from home and loved ones,
'Twas there our brave Don fell.
Sadly missed by his loving sister and brother-in-law, Annie and Val. Kinealy, also Harold, Merle, Joyce, and little Dorrit, who mourn their uncle Donnie.

SPECIAL ADVERTISEMENTS.

NOTICE TO MEMBERS OF THE DISBANDED NAVAL TRANSPORT COALING BATTALION.

RETURN OF BADGES AND MEDALLIONS.

Attention is again drawn to the fact that the badges and medallions of the disbanded Naval Transport Coaling Battalion have not yet been delivered up, notwithstanding repeated requests to the Secretary and President of the Coal-lumpers' Union.

IT IS HEREBY NOTIFIED to all concerned that these articles should be at once delivered up to the Naval Transport Officer, Circular Quay.

IT IS FURTHER NOTIFIED that any man still retaining his badge and medallion is committing an offence, and anyone having such in his possession after 12th instant is liable to be proceeded against without further notice.

ITALY AND RUSSIA.

The British Government could not have given a more striking proof of its sympathy with Italy and of its sense of the community of interest existing between all the Allied peoples than by the visit to Rome of the Prime Minister and the Chief of the General Staff. Neither the statesman nor the soldier can relieve the Italian Ministers of the burden which the unexpected misfortunes of their country have placed upon their shoulders. Their task is to maintain the national confidence, to give General Cadorna the support he needs, to prevent the spread of treason, and, as far as possible, to cleanse the soil infected by German propaganda. In many branches of this task their English visitors can give them valuable help. In Italy, as in Russia, German propaganda has proceeded by misrepresenting the aims and methods of Great Britain. In both countries Great Britain has been represented as the devotee of Imperialism and the oppressor of native races; and as, therefore, the ally of all the parties opposed to socialism. In Italy the universal resentment against anyone making a profit out of the war has been turned against the British as a nation of profiteers. All high prices have been ascribed to the greed of British shipowners. The scarcity of coal and the lack of necessaries have been put down to selfishness of the British nation, who are thought to control all the avenues of supply. Mr. Lloyd George can demonstrate as well as any man the services which Great Britain has willingly made for Italy since the beginning of the war by her supplies of money, of coal, of provisions, and of munitions. The faculty for dealing quickly with an emergency through which, when Minister for War, he overcame the defects of the transport system of our army in France, may again be called upon. Unless the statements issued in all the Allied countries are false the visitors will find that the disasters have had precisely the same effect on the Italian people as they would have had on the British or French. The Italian people realise that for them there is no compromise between victory and destruction. If the province of Venetia is taken from them, or if they make peace while the enemy is on Italian soil, they lose their place in Europe, their national liberty, and their hopes of an economic progress. There would be no hope for them in a world in which Austria had successfully avenged her defeats, and they were treated as a penitent apostate from the Triple Alliance. The very brief cablegrams from the Western front indicate that the enemy are now trying unsuccessfully to drive the Italians from their inner frontier. They are attempting to turn the Tagliamento line as they turned the line of the Isonzo, and to outflank the army before it has recovered from the retreat. During the next few days we should learn whether the enemy will persist in this attempt or whether he will count his gains and settle down to trench warfare. There can be no possibility of the stagnation which followed defeat on the Russian front. The Italians have suffered as every people must when a war involving the whole nation finds it with an unreconciled proletariat. Its leaders are now warning it that still further sufferings may have to be endured before the enemy is expelled. The Italians, however, have antidotes to war-weariness which the Russians had not—the enthusiasm of the best of their Socialists for a war of liberation, and the Austrian tradition of cruelty which has survived their dominion in Italy and has been maintained throughout this war.

Interest in the changing fortunes of the Russian Government has been revived by the confession of impotence attributed to M. Kerensky, and the many glosses put upon it in the Allied countries. The United States has been so closely in touch with the Provisional Government through the success of her Ambassador and of the Root mission that we may safely trust the official statement of Mr. Lansing. If he is right M. Kerensky has merely confirmed a general impression. Russia will continue to maintain an army in being which will detain German and Austrian divisions on her frontiers; she will not be able to take part in an offensive for many months, if at all. During the winter many of the regiments will be employed in an attempt to remedy the desperate state of the transport services and to ward off the famine which threatens the large towns and many country districts as well. While the Government is planning to use the winter to reorganise the nation internally it cannot be certain that it is at an end of the economic and political struggles between the different parties to the revolution. The hostility between the Cadets and the mass of the revolutionary parties evidently still continues, although a Cadet is Foreign Minister. If he goes to the Allied Congress he can speak for only half Russia, for the Democrats will neither trust him to speak for them nor accompany him to state their own views. The few indications which reach us suggest that the parties opposed to the extreme Democrats are gathering strength. They have a common interest in the protection of property, for the Democrats have already ordered that all estates be expropriated without compensation, except for improvements. They have a common motive in the preservation of Russia, for the Democrats are prepared to allow the empire to fall apart into its constituent nationalities, each one of which would be a vassal of Germany. The winter may yet see the Cadets assume a controlling influence in the Government. There is a remarkable assumption of activity by the generals who, after their great services to Russia, were thrown aside by the Republic. The Don Cossacks might not have great influence at any other time, but to-day their intervention is a symptom of the despair with which the military leaders view the prospect of the continued impotence of their army.

"IN DUE COURSE."

In the above phrase the Prime Minister has indicated the time when "the greatest disaster that has overtaken the Allies since the war began" shall be discussed. It is to have ample treatment and consideration in due course. As the Federal Cabinet is to meet to-morrow to deal with what is neither more nor less than a national crisis, we may assume that Ministers are prepared to put everything aside to reach a decision; but unfortunately Mr. Hughes does not say that. The debate in Cabinet will proceed and argument may run round the circle without any satisfactory conclusion. Ministers have not declared themselves upon the most important question of all: what constitutes a disaster so serious that the pledge given at the last general election shall open the road to universal service? The Prime Minister, however, has gone so far that we may hope for prompt action. Nothing that Mr. Holman said last Wednesday could be more emphatic than the statement that Italy's defeat represents the greatest disaster of a three years' war, in which Russia has been practically broken, and nearly every small State within Germany's reach has either been bullied into quiescence or overrun. So serious is the position of Italy that Mr. Lloyd George, with General Smuts, Sir William Robertson, and other prominent British leaders and officials, has gone to Rome to confer with the Italian Government. Nothing could be more ominous in some aspects than this, though in other respects it may represent a co-ordination of effort which will bring recovery and final victory. Either way Australia has her cue. The Federal Government has now no possible excuse for further marking time, for if Italy is crushed Great Britain will have to call at once for the last man in this and in the other dominions; and if Italian troops are still facing the foe waiting for reinforcements from the Allies, stubborn and ready to die in the last ditch, more than ever are we bound to rally to the common standard. There surely is no alternative but universal service, put into operation at the earliest possible moment. Not only patriotism and public honour call us to do our part beside Canada, New Zealand, and South Africa, but sheer common sense suggests that a general rally is our only possible reply to Germany's latest triumph. There can be no middle course between voluntary service and national service. The former has failed. We know it has failed; and neither Senator Pearce nor Mr. Cook last week could find reassuring words when discussing it, while the Prime Minister himself has to omit any reference to it in dealing so briefly with Italy's desperate plight. Clearly on the facts Federal Ministers have no alternative, and universal service is their only choice.

Now "in due course" doubtless covers the discussion of obstacles in the way of an immediate decision to appeal to or trust the people. Yet if the war is put before everything Ministers will not allow their own or their supporters personal feelings to weigh for an instant. It is quite conceivable that many members, and possibly some Ministers, shrink from a dissolution of Parliament, with its consequent appeal to the electorates. They find each new election an expensive struggle for existence, and a repetition at so short an interval becomes exceedingly unpleasant to contemplate. Personal pressure in this way may even make the decision to hold another referendum difficult to reach. The bogey of sharpening divisions and ruthless slander and misrepresentation is sure to become increasingly frightful as hesitation continues; and less and less may the Cabinet find it possible to pluck up courage for a great renunciation. To risk everything on a single throw may become the venture which even Nationalist leaders will decline to take if they hesitate long enough. And yet it must be that; or Australia will make the great denial, and go down in history as the dominion which could send men to fight to the last and to die facing the foe, but collectively was renegade and a coward. It is inconceivable that our politicians shall bring us to such a pass. The people by a majority is ready to give the Government all the assurance it needs to go ahead. We all have somebody at the front related by blood, tied by friendship, or held in respect by acquaintanceship; and the thought of allowing Australian divisions to dwindle and disappear, and Australian soldiers to die without relief, is repugnant to every true heart amongst us. To assume the reverse is to believe that Australia is disloyal and turncoat, which no man who knows us will believe for a moment. No doubt there is the turncoat to keep constantly in mind, as well as the whisperer of fear and disloyalty. We have people in our midst who would make our very immunity from invasion and from the horrors and terrors of war a reason for doing as little as possible. Their cry is that Australia has done enough! What is ever enough in a life and death struggle? Our distance from Europe is almost the greatest possible, no doubt, but the United States is at war and an Ally. If the worst came to the worst we could send our men there, half way, to finish their training and go forward with American transports when such were available. It is only a matter of co-operation—of competition in well doing—so that Australia's good name may be vindicated and her politics lifted from the Slough of Despond. Universal service means co-operation at home, here where we live and work, as well as Australian comradeship abroad and hearty good fellowship with all Allied forces against the Hun wherever fighting may take place. Poltroons who think that in this war so many scores or hundreds of thousands of men and so many millions of money are enough forget that they live to-day, and are able to cower behind our coasts unashamed because their forefathers gave to the uttermost—if they were Britons at all. Our freedom to be cowards was won by supreme courage and self-sacrifice; and Mr. Hughes and his colleagues have no need to be reminded also that the best traditions of British statesmanship and leadership have come from the same noble qualities in the national character. Therefore their duty is to set a great example, and if necessary to lose everything in the gift of steadfast devotion to duty.

PERSONAL.

At the Redfern police barracks on Wednesday afternoon, the Lieutenant-Governor (Sir Wm. Cullen) will present a number of ex-officers of the Public Service with Imperial Service Medals.

Mr. Hughes, Prime Minister, and Mr. Joseph Cook, Minister for the Navy, left Sydney for Melbourne last night. A meeting of the Federal Cabinet is to be held in Melbourne to-morrow.

The Premier (Mr. Holman), who will be one of the representatives of New South Wales at the opening of the trans-Australian railway, will, if time permits, visit his electorate before going on to Melbourne en route to Port Augusta.

The Minister for Mines (Mr. Fitzpatrick), and the Minister for Works (Mr. Ball) will leave by Friday night's express for Melbourne, for the purpose of going through to Port Augusta to attend the formal opening of the trans-Australian railway.

The Queensland Premier, accompanied by Mrs. Ryan, left Brisbane on Saturday for Melbourne.

A private cablegram has been received notifying that Captain B. M. Carruthers, R.A.M.C., son of the Rev. D. Carruthers, has been detailed for military hospital service in India. Previously he served for 18 months on Salonica in connection with the field ambulance. More recently he has been at the Aldershot hospital.

Mr. W. J. Slattery, who has been associated with Messrs. Howard Smith, Limited, for over 26 years, and who advanced from a junior to the responsible position of coal sales manager for the company, was last Wednesday night tendered a farewell on resigning to take up other spheres of labour. The members of the Sydney staff of Howard Smith, Limited, presented Mr. Slattery, through the manager, New South Wales (Mr. R. R. Murdoch), with a gold watch inscribed.

Mr. A. J. Carter, M.L.C., of Queensland, died at his residence, Kangaroo Point, Brisbane, on Sunday at the age of 70 years. Deceased, who had been in failing health for some time, was Consular Agent for France and Consul for Norway.

N.Z. DOCTOR'S APPOINTMENT.

WELLINGTON (N.Z.), Monday.

Dr. Truby King has been granted a year's leave of absence from Seacliff Mental Hospital to permit him to take a proffered post at the Marlborough School of Motherhood, London, which will be worked on the lines of the Karitane Home, Dunedin. Dr. King departs about the end of the year.

CONSCRIPTION.

MR. HUGHES RETICENT.

MANY PROBLEMS TO FACE.

All efforts to induce the Prime Minister to express an opinion yesterday on the proposal further to test the Commonwealth electors on the question of conscription failed.

"I do not intend to say anything about it," said Mr. Hughes. "The matter of recruiting will most certainly be considered by the Government in the near future, together with a number of other serious issues that require attention."

Mr. Hughes went on to say that the Government realised to the full the importance of the question in view of the Italian debacle. He admitted that the potentialities of the present military position were more serious than any that had arisen since the battle of the Marne. He denied that the meeting of the Cabinet that has been convened for to-morrow in Melbourne was specially called for the purpose of deciding upon the attitude of the Government with regard to the supply of reinforcements for the Australian troops at the front. That could not be, he said, because the meeting had been called before the crushing defeat of the Italian forces. The meeting would take it into consideration with other matters, and would get to work on the general policy of the Government, which is to be submitted to the Commonwealth Parliament at the adjourned session at the end of this month.

Mr. Hughes declined to express an opinion as to whether the present military position fulfilled the conditions mentioned in the pledge given by the Federal National party at the general elections. He had read, he said, the statements made by Professor Macintyre, in charge of recruiting in this State, and also the speeches made by Sir William Irvine on the subject, but he failed to see how the opinions of either gentleman affected the real position which the Government had to face. "The whole matter will be considered," he said, "and considered very earnestly. More than that cannot be said just now."

COMMITTEE'S APPEAL.

TO COUNTRY CENTRES.

An appeal, addressed in each instance to the Mayor of the municipality or president of the shire, has been issued by the New South Wales Conscription Committee. It urges the calling of public meetings, and reads as follows:—

Dear Sir,—The crisis with which the Allies are now faced is so great that prompt and fearless action is required from all patriotic citizens. A most urgent appeal is, therefore, made to you by the New South Wales Conscription Committee to call a public meeting at the earliest possible date to emphasise the plain need for conscription, in order that Australia may fulfil her obligations to the men at the front and to the Empire, and exert her full strength for our national safety, as well as for our national honour.

Upon the Federal Government rests an inescapable responsibility for an immediate and courageous decision, but there is also the equally plain duty of every loyal Australian to do what in him lies in helping the Government in the hour of our common peril. The most practicable way in which this can be done at the present moment is by registering in public meetings throughout this State the determination of the people that the shortest and most effective steps shall at once be taken to introduce a fair and just measure of conscription, and urging upon the Government the necessity for assuming full responsibility before the electors for its action. Whether the Government should pass a bill before or after going to the country is, after all, only a question of method. The only thing that really matters is that the Government should pledge itself to the readiness of Australia to meet the crisis of our destiny with unflinching courage. And it is the especial duty of New South Wales to lead the way.

The issues involved are the safety and honour of Australia—issues far above and beyond all personal or party considerations. The Conscription Committee is non-party, and represents all sections of the community. It invites your attention to the accompanying statement, which has already been published in the Press. It begs you with the utmost earnestness to serve Australia in her hour of trial by taking prompt action.

The following resolutions are suggested:—

"1. That this meeting, being firmly convinced of the justice and necessity of conscription, urges the Commonwealth Government to take at once the requisite steps for its introduction.

"2. That all persons in favour of this resolution form themselves into a branch of the New South Wales Conscription Committee, to work for the adoption of conscription."

The various sub-committees of the New South Wales Conscription Committee met yesterday, and amongst other things dealt with the final arrangements for carrying out the monster public meeting to be held in the Town Hall on Friday evening next at which the principal speaker will be Sir William Irvine. Other well-known prominent public men will also deliver addresses. The president of the Returned Sailors and Soldiers' Imperial League is being approached with a view to the representation of the league on the platform.

Although sufficient time has not yet elapsed to enable the letters, which have been sent to the mayors and presidents of the various municipalities and shires in the State to reach their destination, intimation has been received from many suburbs of contemplated early action in support of the movement.

Several representatives of the Lismore Recruiting Committee called at the offices of the committee yesterday and stated that their local committee was practically unanimous in supporting the objects of the Conscription Committee.

The Rejected Volunteers Association has also passed a resolution promising its active co-operation with the movement.

At a meeting of the finance committee held yesterday, the following gentlemen were appointed honorary treasurers to the committee:—Messrs. G. F. Earp, M.L.C., T. J. Hitchman, and G. S. Littlejohn. An appeal is made by them for financial support to the movement and donations may be forwarded to the hon. treasurers, University-chambers, Phillip-street, Sydney.

Anyone desirous of giving active assistance to the movement is requested to communicate with the hon. secretary.

There have been many inquiries from country towns as to what action is to be taken locally, and the inquirers have been referred to the local mayor or shire president, also to the secretaries of the various patriotic organisations, many of which have already signified their intention to assist.

RECRUITING COMMITTEES DISBANDING.

DEMAND FOR CONSCRIPTION.

Professor Macintyre, chairman of the State Recruiting Committee, stated yesterday that he had received intimation from sundry recruiting committees that they proposed to disband as a protest against the voluntary system. He hoped that no committee would take this step by way of protest, as those who would suffer would be the men at the front for want of support.

Professor Macintyre said it seemed advisable to make some statement on the conscription issue now being raised so far as regarded War Service Committees acting as recruiting committees and Win-the-war Leagues who were being invited by outside organisations to take part in conscription campaign. Hitherto the policy laid down by the State Recruiting Committee was that the whole organisation stood apart from politics or the question of conscription versus anti-conscription. The organisation was the Government's machinery for securing reinforcements for our army, and the State Committee had stood loyally by its task in carrying out the Government's policy, and without the assistance of Government finance the work could not be carried out even by local committees. It would manifestly be improper for those engaged in this work, either as honorary or paid workers, to make use of a Government organisation for other purposes than that for which it was set up. No objection had ever been taken to honorary workers contending for or against conscription elsewhere than on the recruiting platforms, and there was no suggestion of limiting this liberty.

The chairman desired to recognise the self-restraint with which the policy of the committee had been observed by those who had assisted in carrying out the present campaign. The paid staff of recruiting officers and organisers had been equally loyal to instructions, though it was well known that nearly all of them believed in conscription as the better method. The chairman, himself an honorary worker, had adhered to the Government's policy both on and off the recruiting platform, though his personal views were fairly well known. As long as the voluntary system was the only method available for securing recruits it seemed to him that the larger loyalty demanded that every effort should be exercised in that direction.

The Government, he added, had now officially intimated that in the light of the present war situation, and of the inadequacy of reinforcements, it was prepared to reconsider the policy hitherto laid down; but meantime recruits had to be obtained, and the work had to go on. There were abundant opportunities for individual members of War Service Committees and Win-the-war Leagues to express their views on the conscription issue, but it was not desirable that these committees or leagues as such should ally themselves with any conscriptionist league. The Government had intimated that it would speedily declare the policy it intended to pursue, and local committees and leagues might well wait for that declaration of policy. In any case, if resolutions were passed the constitutional procedure was to report these to recruiting headquarters at Sydney, which would see that they were considered by the proper authorities.

"WIN-THE-CUP WEEK."

"From the enormous amount of space devoted to the Victorian racing carnival in some of the papers throughout the Commonwealth this week must evidently be considered as a win-the-cup-week rather than a win-the-war-week," remarked Professor Macintyre, chairman of the State Recruiting Committee, yesterday.

"I notice," the chairman continued, "that Senator Pearce, the Minister for Defence, on his return from a visit to the A.I.F. camp at Liverpool last week, remarked that he observed great improvements in the roads, drainage, etc., but concluded with the statement that 'There is nothing wanting now—only men.' I do not think there will be any lack of men at Flemington to-morrow. They will flock out there by the thousand, and though many, no doubt, will wear the returned soldier's badge, and still others will carry the snowy hair, which shows they are in the winter of their days, yet, judging by past racecourse crowds, there will be a large percentage of eligibles on the course to whom the word 'duty' is as unknown as the philosopher's stone.

"In September last we were 25,000 men short in our reinforcements, and yet we are only asking for 7000 a month, not to create new divisions, but solely to maintain our divisions at the front at their full fighting strength. We call for men to relieve those noble lads who have for so long borne the brunt of the heavy fighting in Gallipoli, Egypt, Mesopotamia, and on the British line in France. These lads at the front are as fond of a race meeting as are those staying behind in Australia. On more than one occasion impromptu race meetings have been held behind the lines, according to the English papers, but what a difference in the two classes of meetings! In France not a man present save in khaki, unless it might be some aged peasant attracted by the unusual occurrence, or some open-mouthed children anxious to view so unique a scene, which, in years to come, they will boast of to less fortunate comrades. In the air only the roar of guns and around the course shell-torn tree stumps. In Australia a huge concourse of fashionably attired men and women, the course garlanded with roses, fountains playing, and nothing in the air but the roar as the winner flashes past the post. It hardly seems possible that the two scenes could be enacted practically simultaneously by men boasting the same nationality.

"From the trenches, led by General Birdwood himself, comes the appealing cry for men and still more men to fill the gaps. In Australia, the Minister for Defence states that what is most urgently needed is men and still more men. Every recruiting committee in every State of the Commonwealth has placed the need for men and still more men before those who stay at home. Every win-the-war-league has impressed on those holding back from honour's call the dire necessity of comrades at the front, and yet 140,000 so far have turned a deaf ear to the greatest appeal Australia has ever made.

"A mere trifle such as winning the war must not be allowed to interfere with such a national institution as 'win-the-cup-week,'" added the chairman. "But I wonder how many of those eligibles who have left Sydney for the southern capital to participate in win-the-cup-week festivities will pay any heed on their return to the Minister's remark that what is wanting now in the camp is men—only men. Men will not be wanting on the course throughout this week, but what about the camp? The need for men will not wait upon our arguments for or against conscription. That matter will have to be discussed and definitely settled, but meantime we must fill the gaps."

"GO TO THE COUNTRY."

The Hunter's Hill Municipal Council last night gave consideration to the circular of the Referendum Petition Committee, and, on the motion of the Mayor (Alderman W. A. Windeyer), seconded by Alderman L. A. Myers, unanimously decided "that this council does not favour the proposed petition for a referendum, but is of opinion that the Federal Government should immediately resign, and go to the country on the one issue of conscription." There was no discussion on the matter.

THE ALTERED CONDITIONS.

Mr. Arthur Griffith (who was a member of the executive and chairman of the literature committee of the last Referendum campaign) yesterday expressed the view that the question should be submitted to the electors by a referendum free from the political complications and personal issues incidental to a general election.

"The negative pledge," said Mr. Griffith, "given by Mr. Hughes and his supporters to the anti-conscription electors not again to submit the matter to the people unless some heavy disaster should befall the Allied cause, carries with it the converse pledge to the conscriptionists that if such a disaster should occur the people would be given an opportunity to reconsider their decision in the light of the altered circumstances. Those conditions are with us to-day. Either of the recent disasters to our cause, the knock-out of Russia or the Italian debacle, would of itself fulfil the condition; the two together render immediate action imperative. I am not at all afraid of the issue. The great body of our unionists (notwithstanding what some of the men temporarily acting as their leaders may have said or done) are just as loyal and as determined to help win the war as any other class of our citizens or as their comrades in France, Britain, and America. They would have carried conscription the last time had they known what they do now. Ever since the war began our people have been fed on optimistic slush—they have been told that everything was all right, that Germany was beaten, that a few months now would see the exhaustion of the Central Powers. The wonder to me is that in the circumstances so many people voted 'yes.' Now things are different. Our people know the war is not won, that nothing less than the strenuous concentration of the whole strength of every portion of our Empire can prevent the German war-lords dictating a humiliating peace to the democracies of the world."

A LIFE AND DEATH STRUGGLE.

ADELAIDE, Monday.

The announcement that the recruiting problem will be reviewed by the Federal Cabinet this week was brought under the notice of the Premier, Mr. Peake, who replied: "In view of recent developments which we have seen in respect of two of our great Allies—Russia and Italy—many people who previously opposed conscription must review their ground and the changed situation, which is very grave, if not alarming. I have no reason to alter my opinion that conscription is the only democratic, just, and effective method of compelling every eligible man to take his proper share in the nation's defence, according to his fitness and qualification for service. The position has reached an acute form. It is now a question whether, in view of the nation's peril, which is our own, more energetic and effective steps must be taken to put the last available ounce of our weight into the scale."

"Do you think the Federal Government ought to take the power to enforce conscription, or that another referendum should be resorted to?" the Premier was asked.

"Looking at the matter to-day, I cannot see how Mr. Hughes can go back on the strong pledges that were given prior to May 5," he answered. "To my mind, it means another referendum. If such a campaign be entered upon, my Government and its Parliamentary supporters would be willing actively to engage in the efforts to induce all patriotic Australians to approve of the issue. The people are realising now more than ever that this is a life and death struggle. The truth has come home, and all must face it."

FULLY SUBSCRIBED.

LIBERTY LOAN.

HIGHLY SATISFACTORY RESULT.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

In the absence of the Treasurer, Sir John Forrest, the Secretary to the Treasury, Mr. Collins, announced this evening that the sum subscribed to the Liberty Loan, which closed on Friday last, was £19,651,340, and that, in addition, applications were yet to come to hand from places which were several days distant from the capital centres.

The above sum included applications received at all capital centres except Perth up to noon to-day, and at Perth the close of business on Saturday. This result brings the total sum raised in Australia by the five war loans floated up to practically £100,000,000.

Since the prospectus for the Liberty Loan was issued the Treasury has also received an amount of £554,000 from the sale of war savings certificates, and this, added to the total subscribed to the loan proper, brings the amount raised during the period, when £20,000,000 was asked for, to £20,205,340. Moreover, many persons who have begun to purchase war savings certificates will continue their purchases regularly, and the Treasury experts that from now until April 1, when the last instalment of the Liberty Loan is payable, at least £2,500,000 will be received from the sale of war savings certificates. This may fairly be included in the amount contributed to the loan.

The result of the loan may be regarded as highly satisfactory. The five loans raised in Australia so far have resulted as follow:—

Amount invited.		Amount subscribed.
£5,000,000	....	£13,389,440
£10,000,000	....	£21,655,680
Not stated	....	£23,587,420
£18,000,000	....	£21,684,020
£20,000,000	....	£20,205,340

The details of the loan which closed on Friday are as follow:—

States.	No. of Applications.	Amount Applied for.
New South Wales	9,933 ..	£7,797,230
Victoria	16,449 ..	8,387,540
Queensland	3,306 ..	1,481,570
South Australia	3,524 ..	1,353,070
Western Australia	994 ..	240,290
Tasmania	1,071 ..	391,640
Totals	35,277 ..	£19,651,340

OUR DAY.

FOR THE BRITISH RED CROSS.

There is every indication that the appeal which is being made by the New South Wales Division of the Australian Red Cross Society for funds to assist the British Red Cross Society to carry on its magnificent work will meet with a generous response. The claims of the Red Cross upon the public need no emphasis. To provide for the care and comfort of the sick and wounded at the Front is a primary obligation resting upon every individual. The work of the British Red Cross is now costing over £50,000 per week, and the cost is increasing rather than diminishing. In every theatre of war its activities have been beneficently at work, and the amount of pain and suffering relieved through these activities is incalculable.

"Our Day," when flags and badges are to be sold on behalf of the fund, will be observed on Friday, November 30. The effort, however, will not be confined to a single day. Contributions may be made at any time, and the sooner the better. They will be promptly acknowledged.

The arrangements for "Our Day" are being undertaken by a committee of the Red Cross organisation, with Miss Chester as secretary. The headquarters of this committee are at Dalton House, Pitt-street, on the ground floor.

LORD MAYOR'S DISTRESS FUND.

ANOTHER £1000 VOTE PROPOSED.

At last night's meeting of the City Council Alderman Davoren moved,—"That, having regard to the acute distress which now prevails amongst the women and children resident within the boundaries of the city of Sydney, it be referred to the finance committee to consider and report upon the desirability of voting a sum of £1000 towards alleviating such distress, in addition to the amount already voted under the minute and recommendation submitted by the Lord Mayor, approved by the finance committee, and endorsed by council at its meeting held on October 12, 1917."

Sir Allen Taylor said the council would not be justified in agreeing to the proposal. It was a public disgrace. The council had already voted £1000—and good luck to the people who got the money, for they deserved it. If the motion was carried he would take the responsibility of putting an injunction on the council. The aldermen were not children, and if the proposers wanted the matter referred to the finance committee for an electioneering cry they could not expect others to follow them.

The voting was equal, and the Lord Mayor gave his vote in favour of referring the matter to the finance committee.

SOUTH AUSTRALIAN PARLIAMENT.

ADELAIDE, Monday.

In the Legislative Assembly last week a bill, introduced by a private member, to disfranchise Germans failed to obtain an absolute majority, which is necessary in the case of a measure for amending the Constitution. In several of the constituencies there is considered to be a dominating German influence. Partly arising out of the failure of the bill to pass, a movement is afoot to prolong the life of Parliament. Another feeling which is influencing this movement is the idea that a conscription battle may have to be fought again about next February or March, when in the ordinary course of events the State elections will be due.

A statement had been definitely made that the Government would introduce a bill for extending the life of Parliament this week. The Premier, Mr. Peake, remarked to-day, however, that the Cabinet had not decided to bring in such a bill. There had been general talk among members, but the Government was not preparing a measure to postpone the State elections.

Parliament will be prorogued this week.

GLOUCESTER ELECTION.

The Chief Secretary (Mr. Fuller) returned to the city yesterday from Gloucester, where he addressed several meetings in support of Mr. Martin, the National candidate, in connection with the election there. Mr. Fuller stated that he thought the meetings could fairly be described as very successful. While in the early stages of the election it was thought that Mr. Price could not be beaten, on account of his old association with the electorate, Mr. Martin's prospects had brightened very considerably now that the position was being placed fully before the electors. Mr. Fuller felt, from his personal survey of the position, that Mr. Martin had an excellent chance of success.

THE "SYDNEY MAIL."

The Italian reverse is given prominence in this week's "Mail," the illustrations including fine portraits of General Cadorna and the King of Italy. The news of the British success in Palestine gives special interest to an excellent drawing (sketched from a photograph) of the Anzac Mounted Division on the march. There are scenes from the sodden battle-front in Flanders, including interesting pictures of a British air scout at work. Portraits of many Australians who have gained decorations are published, and, as usual, there are groups of fighting families, of comrades in training and at the front, and individual portraits of men who have made the supreme sacrifice. A portrait of Sir William Irvine accompanies a statement of his views on the subject of conscription. The V.R.C. Meeting is specially dealt with, and there are pictures of the more prominent horses engaged in the meeting. An article by "Milroy" on "The Horse in War: Value of the Thoroughbred" merits the serious attention of breeders and the public generally. Lieutenant Stutt's flight from Richmond to Melbourne is illustrated, and there are striking pictures in connection with the Murray River floods.

ITALY GIVES BATTLE

TEUTONS HELD

THE TAGLIAMENTO

LONDON, Nov. 5.

The Rome newspaper "Popolo Romano" states that the Tagliamento battle has commenced, and is likely to continue violently for some time on the Italian left.

A Washington message, dated Saturday afternoon, says an official despatch reports that the Italians are holding the Teutons everywhere.

An Italian official message on Sunday stated: We repulsed a strong attack against advanced posts in the Doane and Giumella valleys, and in the Giudicarie sector.

The Rome correspondent of the United Press Agency telegraphs that the latest reports show that the heroic resistance of the Italians has aroused the whole capital, which is convinced the invasion can be stemmed.

It is reported that the Germans hope to capture Venice, and to force peace by threatening to ruin the city or to hand it over to Austria.

A Rome message says the Tagliamento line is the first defensive system which Italy organised in the spring of 1915. It will be a few days before the German heavy artillery is across the mountains.

Now there is a general desire for the Allies' aid. Previously the Staff declined help, believing it would be derogatory to Italy's dignity to have Allied troops defending Italian soil. France's example is quoted as illustrating the absurdity of the idea.

The "Tribuna" warns the nation to look the facts in the face, and realise that big battles must be fought on the Venetian Plain before the issue is decided. "The Italian revanche cannot be rapid," says the paper. "Let the people be patient, even if more territory is temporarily evacuated."

ALLIED HELP.

The Press Bureau announces that Mr. Lloyd George has gone to Italy, accompanied by General Smuts (member of the War Cabinet), General Sir William Robertson (Chief of Staff), General Wilson, General Maurice (Director of Military Operations), and other officers.

A Washington message says the French High Commission points out that the Anglo-French attacks are compelling Germany to transport more troops to the Western front, which will probably restrict the aid which the Germans are able to extend to Austria on the Italian front until the situation there is relieved.

The United Press says the United States Ambassador has conferred with Baron Sonnino and the Allied diplomats and militarists.

GRIM EXODUS.

STORY OF RETREAT.

Mr. Ward Price ascribes the lack of resistance on the part of the Second Army largely to propaganda, heavily financed from Germany, urging the soldiers to refuse to go on fighting, and assuring them that the quickest way to peace was surrender. Some battalions had been six months in a quiet sector, and, when the test of battle came, the battalions failed.

The great attack began at 2 o'clock in the morning of October 24, from the bridgehead at Santa Lucia towards Plezzo. A most violent bombardment lasted two hours, special gas shells obliging the Italians to take cover. Fog and rain helped the enemy to advance secretly. When the bombardment stopped at four o'clock, the Italians believed it was a lull, as it seemed an inadequate preparation for a big attack.

The Italians were not on their guard when they suddenly saw the enemy storming forward. Next day they discovered that German divisions were concentrated between Plezzo and Gorizia.

Some Italian battalions left their posts and fled without their arms and equipment, though others fought gallantly at Monte Nero and elsewhere. But the undermined section of the Italian wall of defence had given way, and the rest was in vain. The enemy was through. Once across the Isonzo, the Austro-Germans began to pour down the valley towards Cividale and Udine.

On the Saturday morning it was clear that Udine was doomed, and that an immense sacrifice of territory must be made in order to save the Third Army. As I crossed the Isonzo (he writes) I found Italian engineers placing charges to blow up the bridge. The roads were blocked with carts, motor lorries, and pack animals. Though, fortunately, the road was not shelled, the night scenes during the retreat resembled Gustave Dore's conception of the Day of Judgment. Houses, sheds, depots, and stores of every kind crackled into flames. The sky was ablaze with the reflected glare. The town of Palmanova was accidentally burnt by flames from burning dumps. In 31 hours my train covered 15 miles, so I got out and walked. On either side of the train plodded an endless stream of soldiers, and fleeing townspeople and peasantry. Sometimes women in rich furs and jewels were among the shabby multitude. We passed one train loaded with waterproofs. Soldiers clambered on to the trucks, ripped up the bundles, and threw out mackintoshes to the eager crowd below. Socks and shirts were similarly distributed. Elsewhere tinned salmon was thrown out. Groups of Italians stripped off their sodden clothes and re-dressed in looted outfits. Civilian refugees similarly benefited.

The retreat continued four days. Many died, but hundreds of thousands got behind the Tagliamento somehow. The flooded rivers, the marshy district, and torrential rains prevented the Austro-Germans closely pursuing.

TREASON SUSPECTED.

A Paris message says the examining magistrate has notified M. Caillaux (an ex-Minister) that he must give evidence in connection with the "Bonnet Rouge" affair and his relations with Almyreda and Bolo Pasha.

"Figaro" prints a letter by M. Alfred Capus, pointing out that there are suspicions that M. Caillaux is guilty of base, mercenary treason.

[A cablegram last month referred to M. Caillaux having met Count Michael Karolyi, one of the principals in Bolo Pasha's plots, in Switzerland, during August, and discussed the possibility of a separate peace between France and the Central Powers. Bolo Pasha and others connected with the "Bonnet Rouge" newspaper are charged with having had treasonable relations with the enemy.]

DELUDED GERMANS.

The New York "Evening Sun's" correspondent with the American army says a United States officer, recently returned from the British front, relates that German prisoners said their officers had informed them that the United States was warring against the Allies and not against Germany.

TIRED RUSSIA.

WAR'S DEADLY DRAIN.

FIGHTING SPIRIT LIVES.

LONDON, Nov. 4.

Professor Pares (Professor of Russian, Liverpool University), commenting on M. Kerensky's statement that Russia was worn out, and that the Allies must take up the heaviest burden of the war, says that after living two years with the Russians he knows that their successes and failures entailed the loss of half to three-quarters of their effectives. The Russians sustained their losses without grumbling. Russia paid in men what she lacked in munitions. Her losses were far more terrible than ours. Professor Pares is now more hopeful that Russia will yet discharge her part in the war.

Washington advices state that Mr. Lansing, Secretary of State, declares that the Russian Government is attacking problems energetically, and is still animated by a strong determination to organise all the resources of Russia for a whole-hearted resistance of the enemy, and to carry on the war to a victorious completion. Her Allies are rendering all possible assistance.

Mr. Lansing issued his statement in order to contradict one Washington newspaper's alarmist interpretation of M. Kerensky's statement. An amplification of the statement shows that M. Kerensky considers the Allies should bear the heaviest part of the war.

The Russian Ambassador in Washington states that assertions that Russia will quit the war are malicious. The Russians are now holding 147 enemy divisions. Only seven divisions have been diverted to Italy.

The United States Treasury Department has extended a credit of £6,200,000 to Russia, making the total £38,000,000.

The "New York Times," in an editorial, says: M. Kerensky's statement, which was at first misunderstood, reflects a weariness of spirit verging on exhaustion. It is clear that he does not intend to abandon the conflict, but he was a little hysterical when he said the Allies should now shoulder the burden. Britain and France could not have done more, and America is helping Russia with generous hands.

THE PEACE QUESTION.

A message from Petrograd states that M. Kerensky, in the course of an interview, said it was impossible to send a delegate in company with M. Terestchenko to the Paris Conference, owing to differences with M. Terestchenko and the democrats respecting the government of small nations. If M. Terestchenko were included, the democrats would decline to send a delegate.

M. Kerensky considers that the sending of a democratic delegate is indispensable. The Peasants' Executive demands a declaration of the status quo ante bellum with full reparation and compensation by Germany to Belgium, also the prevention of German state officials and families participating in the proposed Alsace-Lorraine referendum, but omits any reference to the German colonies.

REORGANISATION.

The London correspondent of the United Press Agency says it is officially felt that M. Kerensky relies on the winter to prevent the German invasion, and to carry on the remoulding of the Russian structure. He resisted and delayed the crisis until now, when he is gaining tangible strength over the Bolsheviki. He may withdraw millions of soldiers actively to assist in the country's rehabilitation.

COSSACKS A FACTOR.

The "Daily Chronicle" correspondent at Petrograd says the latest political feature is the activity of the Don Cossacks, who are almost the sole repository of real force remaining in Russia. A deputation visited the British Ambassador bearing congratulations to the British army and navy, and assured the Ambassador that the Cossacks would fight, and the coming spring would see the revival of Russia's will to conquer.

The Cossack deputation visited M. Kerensky and warned him to keep independent of the Soviets instead of subordinating himself. He was warned that he must also be careful how he accused General Kaledin (the Cossack leader). M. Kerensky replied: "The Soviets consider me a despot, and a friend of the Bourgeoisie."

Generals Alexieff, Russky, and Brussiloff attended the Orthodox Church conference at Moscow. They met with a tumultuous reception, members of the conference cheering them again and again. The generals received the Church's blessing. General Brussiloff is now presiding over the Pan-Slav conference in Moscow.

GERMANY.

PEACE STATEMENT COMING.

An Amsterdam report says Hindenburg and General von Ludendorff held a two-days' conference in Berlin. The greatest secrecy was observed, but no agreement has yet been reached.

Count von Hertling has accepted Herr Helfferich's resignation from the office of Finance Minister.

It is expected that Count Hertling will make a statement in the Reichstag on November 22, regarding Germany's and Austria's readiness for peace. Count Czernin, the Austrian Foreign Minister, is coming to settle the terms of the statement.

CAPITAL AND LABOUR.

WAR'S AFTER EFFECT.

Mr. John Hodge (Minister for Pensions), in the course of an interview, said the war was sure to bring about closer co-operation between capital and labour, also closer co-operation between the workmen of countries now fighting side by side. He hoped these organised workers would ostracise the German people for 21 years, for they were as bad as the German Government.

GERMAN GENERAL KILLED.

An Amsterdam report says General von Berrer, commanding the Wurtemberg armies, was killed while visiting the trenches at Riga, which he took a leading part in capturing.

ENEMY'S NAVAL LOSS.

A Copenhagen message says the "National Tidende" states that 12 survivors from the German trawlers, which were sunk in company with the raider Marie, have arrived at Falkenburg. They state that when the British destroyers appeared they thought they were Danish vessels until their fire opened. They sank all the trawlers. Firing was continued until the destroyers were within a range of 200 metres.

IRELAND.

Dublin was quiet on Sunday despite feverish excitement. The Irish volunteers held many route marches. There were no untoward incidents.

A GREAT DAY

HOW BEERSHEBA WAS TAKEN.

STIRRING STORY.

LONDON, Nov. 5.

Mr. Massey, the correspondent of the London "Daily Telegraph," sends a stirring despatch describing General Allenby's surprise blow, which smashed up the eastern end of the Turkish line and wrested Beersheba from the enemy.

There was a stern fight, lasting all day, in which the New Zealand and Australian mounted troops and British infantry displayed great endurance and courage, doing everything as planned, so that the Staff scheme seemed to go like clockwork. The story of the day will add glory to the lads from English cities and shires, and Australia and New Zealand.

The splendid British infantry, after long night marches, attacked with such determination that they tore down the wire entanglements with their hands. Then, as the moon rose over the Judea hills, the Australian Horse dashed in on the strongly-held trenches and captured the town.

At dawn on October 31 the Australians and New Zealanders were south of Beersheba, and the British infantry were facing the northern, western, and south-western defences, which were cut in the range of hills hiding Beersheba from view. The Turkish entrenchments were elaborate and skilfully chosen, and were heavily protected by wire. The guns covered all approaches. Prisoners declare they believed Beersheba was impregnable.

MARCH ACROSS DESERT.

General Allenby's astonishing success in concealing his march across the sun parched desert was the outstanding reason for success of the whole operation.

The movement commenced with a cavalry scrap on October 27, when 3000 Turks with 12 guns attacked the British cavalry screen occupying high ground near the Jerusalem-Beersheba railway. The British squadron held out throughout the day with both flanks enveloped. Another was surrounded on three sides. They beat off two determined cavalry charges, and when the infantry arrived they were able to occupy the ground without fighting.

The British infantry marched by night, being hidden in the daytime in wadi beds. There was a beautiful moon on the night of October 30-31. The Australians and New Zealanders made a wide, rapid sweep to the south-east in order to rush in at dawn and get astride the Hebron-road, so as to prevent a Turkish retirement. The infantry attacked Hill 1070 and succeeded with an irresistible rush within half an hour, though a German machine-gun section occupied the hill. The infantry then pressed on to the Wadi Sarba trenches, making rushes across the open.

BOMBERS DASH IN.

Without heeding the enfilading guns and spasmodic machine-gunning, the bombers dashed in wherever our artillery broke down the wire. Elsewhere the British tore down the wire from its iron supports with their hands. It was grand work. The English countrymen, showing inspiring courage and resource, though they had been fighting 12 hours, captured one defence after another until all the Beersheba stronghold was captured by 9.30.

Many Australians and New Zealanders rode 30 miles before getting into action. Their work was as meritorious as that of the British. They first captured Sakaty, a high hill six miles north-east of Beersheba, dominating a wide district. With their usual elan these big Australians stopped at nothing. They had rounded up every Turk on Sakaty Hill by 1 in the afternoon. Then they captured the Hebron-road. Even more difficult was the taking of Tel-el-Saba, a foothill three miles east of Beersheba, which had been converted into a redoubt of great strength, and was made almost unapproachable by the steep banks of the wadi running alongside. But the New Zealanders and Australians had carried it by 3.30. Then they turned their attention to a group of houses between the hill and the Hebron-road, held by German machine-gunners. This felt the full weight of the colonial arm. It was getting dark, and their anxiety about water for the horses and the other Australians settled matters. The Australians formed up against the eastern trenches, fixed bayonets, and, charging line after line, went for the enemy. Before the last wave reached the trenches the German machine-gunners were silent, telling a tale of enemy dead. Dismounting at the first line of trenches the Anzacs went on afoot, over-powering all the Turks.

INTO THE TOWN.

Then, bringing forward their chargers, they galloped, cheering, into the town.

There was every evidence that the Turks were completely surprised. A train was standing at the station, and the warehouses were full of corn and almost intact. The 31st was a great day for the Palestine army. The Staff work was admirable, and the moral of the troops was never higher.

THE GAZA ATTACK.

An official report from Egypt states: Our captures at Beersheba included 15 guns.

The prisoners taken at Gaza numbered 444, including 26 officers.

A Turkish communique says: There has been intense artillery fire at Gaza. Our batteries effectively replied.

Enemy cruisers are bombarding the coast.

MESOPOTAMIA.

FURTHER BRITISH SUCCESS.

An official message from Mesopotamia says: A reconnoitring column engaged the Turks on the right bank of the Tigris, opposite Dur. The enemy withdrew towards Tekrit, under cover of a strong rearguard. We drove out the latter from successive lines of trenches, and occupied the whole position.

Our cavalry harassed the retreating enemy all day. We captured 89 prisoners.

GERMANS IN ARGENTINA.

Messages from Buenos Ayres announce that loyalists wrecked German clubs and newspaper offices. The news confirms the reports that Count von Luxburg's plotting would end in the Government taking the severest military measures against Germans in the south, where the German colonies fomented strikes.

WESTERN FRONT.

THE GERMAN RETREAT.

LONDON, Nov. 5.

A Paris report says that Chasseurs at daybreak on Friday found an empty trench on the slopes of Chemin-des-Dames, and it was soon evident that a general withdrawal was being effected. Within an hour French troops were swarming down the hill, on a front of thirteen miles. Every precaution was taken against German traps.

The retreat was precipitate, and the German soldiers left tins of soup still hot. The marshy ground will be unpleasant during the winter, but the French artillery will be able to raid the German trenches and lines of communication. It is still doubtful how far the retreat extends.

A French communique, issued on Sunday afternoon, stated: The artillery activity continues to be very marked north of the Chemin-des-Dames, in the region between the Pinon and Vauxaillon.

After a violent bombardment the Germans twice attacked north of Chaume Wood, on the right bank of the Meuse. Our fire dispersed the assailants with heavy losses.

AN OBVIOUS REASON.

A semi-official message which has reached Amsterdam from Berlin explains that the German withdrawal from Chemin-des-Dames was in order to prevent unnecessary bloodshed.

THE BRITISH.

Sir Douglas Haig, reporting at noon on Sunday, stated: The Irish Fusiliers made a successful raid last night to the south-westward of Havrincourt.

The enemy's two attempts to raid in the neighbourhood of Monchy-le-Preux were repulsed.

Small parties of our troops captured strong points—one to the eastward of Broodseinde, and the other to the south-eastward of Poelcappelle.

Sir Douglas Haig on Sunday night reported: London Territorials successfully raided eastward of Gavrelle, taking prisoners and machine guns. The enemy, under cover of a bombardment, raided south-eastward of Epehy. We repulsed a raid northward of Polygon Wood. There has been considerable mutual artillery fire. Hostile artillery was more active in the Nieuport sector.

AERIAL WORK.

The Admiralty reports: Our air service carried out numerous patrols to-day, downing an enemy machine at sea, driving down and damaging another, and probably destroying a third.

We raided Engel aerodrome, and bombed hangars and sheds. Two of the enemy's attacking machines were driven down. All ours returned.

"A SHAMEFUL DEED."

BELGIAN GIRLS ENSLAVED.

Mr. Percival Phillips, the war correspondent, quotes a letter written by one of the German Landwehr, which has been found, protesting against the Germans forcing Belgian girls to build concrete dugouts under fire. The writer was in charge of a party of 50 of these slaves behind the Yser. He says: "It is a shameful deed. It is all simply inconceivable."

DEVASTATED FARMS.

Nine thousand fruit trees and many thousands of poultry have been shipped from England to help to restore the devastated orchards and farms in Northern France.

LOSSES ON THE FINLAND.

It transpires that the casualties on the United States transport Finland, which was torpedoed while homeward bound, but succeeded in reaching a foreign port, were eight killed and one missing.

RECRUITING.

The volunteers throughout the State during last week totalled 577. Of these 286 were accepted for service. As the new South Wales quota, on the 7000 a month basis for the Commonwealth, is about 2300 monthly, it will be seen that last week's enlistments were just about one-half of the minimum set by the Prime Minister.

MEETINGS.

Rozelle Tram Sheds, 2.30 p.m., Railways and Tramways Reinforcement Unit, Lieutenant Litchfield, Warrant Officer Blake, Sapper Hunt, Sergeant Skinner.

To-morrow there will be meetings as follows:—Martin-place, 1 p.m., Sergeant Cross, D.C.M., Sergeant P. Clapin, Sapper Hunt; Dowling-street Tram Sheds, 2 p.m., Railways and Tramways Reinforcement Unit, Lieutenant Thomson, Sergeant Browne; Enmore tram terminus, 8 p.m., Lieutenant Littlejohn, Q.M.S. Joass, Sergeant Robson; Grace Bros.' corner, 12.30 p.m., Lieutenant Litchfield, Warrant Officer Blake, Private Seymour, Sergeant Robson; Balmain, Rowntree-street, 8 p.m., Lieutenant Killeen, Sergeant Hamilton, Sergeant Skinner.

CITY COUNCIL COAL.

The electric light committee at a meeting of the City Council last night recommended the refusal of a request by the contractors (Messrs. B. Byrnes, Limited) that the council pay the increased railway freight on the coal supplies.

The committee also recommended:—"That with regard to the supply of a special quantity of 2000 tons of western coal by Messrs. B. Byrnes, Limited, and a resolution of council of June 19, 1917, that in view of the inferior quality of the coal supplied, payment be stopped pending negotiations with Messrs. Byrnes on the subject, such special quantity, of about 2000 tons of western coal, be regarded as merged into the whole quantity of coal supplied by them under their regular contract, as subject to the special arrangement under resolution of council of July 16, 1917, entailing a reduction in price from 15s 7d to 14s 4d per ton, in respect of such western coal as is supplied by the contractors over and above 30 per cent. of the whole of the coal supplied under the contract."

Both recommendations were agreed to.

The comptroller of assets reported that stocks of coal on October 28 were 6693 tons.

UNITED LOYAL DEMONSTRATION.

The inaugural meeting of the Australian League of Loyalty will be held in the Sydney Town Hall at 8 o'clock to-night. The objects of the league are "to oppose disloyalty, to protect the national system of education, and civil and religious rights generally." The speakers will include Professor Rentoul, of Ormond College, Melbourne, Dr. Merrington, of St. Andrew's, Brisbane, Archdeacon Boyce, and Rev. J. E. Carruthers.

DUKE'S DAUGHTER MARRIED.

OTTAWA, Nov. 3.

Lady Maud Cavendish was married to Captain Angus Mackintosh, of the Royal Horse Guards, a veteran of the present war. The Governor-General (the Duke of Devonshire) gave his daughter away. For the first time in Canadian history the wedding of a Viceroy's daughter has occurred at Rideau Hall.

LONDON MURDER.

LONDON, Nov. 5.

A butcher has been arrested in connection with the murder of the young woman whose body was found in a sack in Regent-square Gardens. It is believed that the victim was the wife of a French soldier named Girouard.

WAR NOTES.

ACTIVITY IN THE NEAR EAST.

The news which has been received from the Near East during the past few days suggests that the British have prepared for fairly extensive operations in some of the secondary theatres of war during the winter period when fighting on the main fronts will be less pronounced. The successes just gained in Southern Palestine and Mesopotamia may be regarded as rather ominous for the Turk, who is not growing more enamoured of the war as time goes on. In the absence of concerted Russian action in Western Persia and Asia Minor, it is difficult to say whether General Maude's forces in Mesopotamia will of themselves attempt any wide-sweeping move. In conjunction with attacks in Southern Palestine, however, General Maude may deem it safe to extend still further his already long lines of communication. The later particulars of the capture of Beersheba, and the news of the successful attack against the first of the strong defensive positions around Gaza indicate that much stronger British forces are operating in this region now than was previously the case. If, with the aid of strong forces on land, and the assistance of the navy, the British could penetrate to any appreciable extent into Palestine and secure a suitable supply base on the coast, the moral effect upon the Turks would be by no means small. At present, however, the final Gaza defences have still to be taken, and we have yet to see how the success on the British right at Beersheba is to develop. The Australian mounted men, who were the first to enter Beersheba, undoubtedly participated in a most important movement, and, whether they now press north-westward along the railway, and threaten to turn the Turkish positions near the coast, or extend north-eastward along the Hebron-road, the success which they shared with the British infantry on October 31 will materially assist the working out of the British plan of campaign in this region.

ADVANCE ALONG THE TIGRIS.

While the British troops in Palestine have been achieving important successes, General Maude's forces in Mesopotamia have not been idle, and, whether the latest move on the right bank of the Tigris indicates direct co-operation with the forces in Palestine or not, it certainly suggests that the Turk is not going to be permitted to enjoy a period of quiet during the next few months. October has passed without the much-talked-of Turkish offensive in Mesopotamia. What offensive action has been taken in that region, since the advent of the cooler weather, has been almost entirely confined to the British. We have seen that three of the principal approaches to Bagdad from the enemy's line come from the north-west, along the Euphrates; from the north, along the Tigris, and from the north-east along the roads running roughly parallel with the Diala. General Maude has recently struck a blow at the enemy on each of these three points of approach. At the end of September last he surrounded and captured Ramadi, on the Euphrates, together with the greater part of the garrison. About three weeks later he drove the enemy across the Diala near Kizil-robat. These two operations strengthened his left and right respectively, and reduced the danger of an enemy advance otwards Bagdad from the north-west and north-east. The operation reported this morning on the right bank of the Tigris represents a move on the centre where the enemy has been pushed further back along his main approach towards Bagdad from the north—the Bagdad railway. The British reconnoitring column referred to in the message this morning was apparently further north than we might have expected to hear it would be. A week ago we were officially informed that Turks on both sides of the Tigris had approached the British positions at Samara, and retired again, indicating that both that town and the station were in British hands. The British column mentioned this morning encountered the Turks opposite Dur, which is probably identical with Imam Dur, a village on the left bank of the Tigris, sixteen miles north of Samara. The Turkish troops who were driven from the positions astride the Bagdad railway, on the opposite side of the river to this village, have fallen back towards Tekrit, sixteen miles further north again. The whole of the British bridgehead covering Bagdad has, therefore, been considerably extended since the cooler weather permitted of a revival of activity.

POSITION ON THE TAGLIAMENTO.

Up to a late hour last night very little official news had been received from Italy, and, although the official despatch said to have been received in Washington from Rome, states that the Italians are holding the enemy everywhere, it is still probably too early to say whether the Italians will continue to pin him back to the eastward of the Tagliamento. As a later message from Rome states, it will probably be some days before the enemy moves his big guns across the mountains and brings his full weight to bear against the Tagliamento line, and, until he has thoroughly tested that line, it is impossible to say whether the Italian retirement has yet reached its limit or not. The Italians, however, have had time to breathe and reorganise their somewhat scattered and confused forces behind this river obstacle. If the moral of those forces is to be depended upon—and there have been many suggestions that the disaffection exhibited in the Second Army has not extended to other units—the troops defending the line of the Tagliamento should be able to render the enemy's task of effecting a crossing of this river a very difficult one, if they cannot hold up his advance there altogether. The enemy's main blow against this defensive line, however, has not yet been struck.

AMERICAN TROOPS AT THE FRONT.

If the recent German announcement regarding the capture of some American troops near the Rhine-Marne canal is correct, it is clear that the few battalions from the United States who are receiving actual experience of modern warfare in the firing line have been allotted a fairly quiet sector. The Rhine-Marne canal crosses the front away round to the south-east, at a point about 18 miles east of the town of Nancy. The American troops there would be about three or four miles away from the Lorraine frontier, and, although the part of the country was the scene of some severe fighting in the early days of the war, no major operations have caused the line to undergo any material change for some considerable time. The sector, however, lies about midway between the French town of Nancy and Saarburg, in Lorraine, which have repeatedly been attacked from the air by Germans and French respectively. The presence of these American battalions at this particular point does not necessarily indicate that this is the region which will be permanently allotted to the United States troops when they are ready to play an active part in the war. That preparations have been made for taking over a particular section of the front is well known, and the special correspondent of the Associated Press at American Field Headquarters in France recently referred to these preparations as follows:—"Big quartermaster stores," he says, "are being established along the American lines of communication with the idea of so placing them that the troops can be supplied in all directions and over a wide front. Here again the French are lending invaluable aid, having turned over to the Americans many of their own field buildings, some of which are complete with French staffs, carefully-trained French women clerks, and French labour, with occasionally a few German prisoners thrown in for good measure. Efforts are now being made to develop American organisation to get the right men for the right places. . . . Medical reserve bases from which field and base hospitals will be supplied have been established with complete stores, even to comfortable rocking chairs for convalescent wounded, which will probably, however, not be required for a long while."

BELMORE BY-ELECTION.

Nominations for the vacancy in the representation of Belmore Ward in the City Council, caused by the death of Alderman Guthen, will close with the Town Clerk at noon on Friday. The polling will take place on Wednesday, November 14.

LATE WAR NEWS.

GERMANS HARASSED.

LONDON, Nov. 5.

Sir Douglas Haig reporting at midday states: Yesterday's raid eastward of Gavrelle resulted in the capture of 14 prisoners, four machine guns, and two trench mortars. Nearly 100 Germans were killed. All the dugouts were destroyed and set afire.

The Sherwood Foresters yesterday evening raided to the north-eastward of Loos, capturing a few and killing a number of Germans. Our casualties were light.

Our fire dispersed reconnoitrers in the neighbourhoods of Hollebeke and Reutel.

PASSCHENDAELE.

THE CANADIAN ATTACK.

LONDON, Nov. 3.

Mr. C. E. W. Bean, Commonwealth official correspondent telegraphs:—The last two battles fought by the Canadians have shown that although far more difficult in bad weather, the modern British method of attack can rush the Germans back from almost any position assaulted. The Canadians, in their first attack, reached the whole line, which they intended to obtain. Owing to the very great difficulty of mud in the low ground on their northern flank, the troops there were unable to make headway, and the Canadian flank was driven in in consequence. The Canadians on this flank again attacked, and again reached the intended line. Practically the whole of this line is now retained and consolidated.

The Germans have stated that the Canadians took Passchendaele, but were driven out again, and possibly believe it, because, under a bombardment such as precedes these assaults, the Germans can be seen running from block-houses and trenches far ahead of our troops, while those in the pill-boxes, huddling in the dark, do not know what is happening outside. When men come running back from Passchendaele, stating that the British were on top of them, they are apt to be believed, even if a few hands later state that no attack followed the bombardment. Whatever is the reason for the German statement that they lost Passchendaele, and later retook it, the fact was known to everyone in this army that the Canadians did not propose to reach Passchendaele. Their attack reached the exact point intended at the extreme southern end of Passchendaele. The village is now quite impossible for German artillery observers, and the position of our lines on the crest, where the ground is curiously sandy, is far more comfortable, safe, and less wasteful than the Ypres flats.

This may help Australians to understand the present fighting in France.

U.S.A. TROOPS.

FIRST TRENCH CASUALTIES.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.

A despatch from General Pershing received in Washington states that the Germans on Saturday raided the American trenches.

Three Americans were killed, five wounded, and 12 captured or missing.

INCREASED FIRE FOR AMERICANS.

The American correspondent with the United States army says that the Germans have increased their fire upon the American trenches, and that the Americans have replied similarly.

ENEMY COMMERCE RAIDERS.

The Washington correspondent of the "New York Sun" says it is understood that the British Admiralty has been reliably informed that Germany will send out speedy commerce raiders to supplement her U boats. These will operate in the Atlantic, and may, sporadically, venture near to the coast of the United States.

CUBA'S PART.

It is reported from Havana that both parties have agreed that Cuba should actively participate in the war. Congress has been convened for November 5. It will authorise either conscription or a selective draft. The military force of 25,000 may be doubled and the navy increased.

PROBLEM OF THE BALTIC.

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.

Mr. Arthur Pollen, writing in the "New York Times," disagrees with the suggestions that the British fleet should be sent to the Baltic. He says no fleet could go to the Baltic unless Sweden and Denmark were in active military alliance with the Allies, or unless they were compelled to accept our military occupation of a commanding point. Britain must first settle the problem involved in the violation of Danish and Swedish neutrality, either by agreement or force. The arrival of the British warships in the Baltic would be the signal for a German invasion of Denmark, thus cutting off the fleet's communication with England.

GERMANY'S ERROR.

A report from Washington states that the Secretary for War (Mr. Newton Baker) in a communique states: The Venetian Plains have become part of the Western battlefront. Germany doubtless thought that Italy would be abandoned to her fate and that the Allies would be unable to despatch assistance in time; but Great Britain and France have already despatched large reinforcements to the threatened sector. Britain, France, and Italy stand united and ready to oppose any further enemy advance in Italy. Germany's principal strength is concentrated in France, where the French and British forces are steadily advancing.

CADORNA CRITICISED.

The military correspondent of the "New York Times" says that lack of shells is not a valid excuse for the disaster to General Cadorna's armies. The real explanation is that Italy concentrated on the Tolmino Gulf-Panzano line instead of on the Isonzo. General Cadorna was out-generalled.

ANTI-GERMAN FEELING.

The Buenos Ayres correspondent of the United Press says that further serious anti-German outbreaks have occurred in the city, and that there has been much destruction of German property.

M. PAINLEVE IN ITALY.

The Paris correspondent of the United Press states that M. Painleve, the French Premier, has gone to Italy.

AUSTRALIA'S DUTY.

SIR WILLIAM IRVINE IN BRISBANE.

BRISBANE, Monday.

Sir William Irvine, on his arrival in Brisbane to-day, said:—Upon what happened in the next fortnight would probably depend much of the future of this country. He was feeling a great hope that the movement for Australia to take its full measure of the burden which other parts of the Empire had taken would meet with immediate success in the near future. The present position ought to convince every man, no matter what political party he belonged to, that he ought to come forward and use every possible effort.

MISSION TRAGEDY.

MURDER BY BLACKS.

BRISBANE, Monday.

A report has reached the police that the Rev. R. Hall, superintendent of the Mornington Island Presbyterian missi.., was murdered by blacks on October 19, and his assistant, Mr. Walter Owen, was wounded.

Mrs. Hall, Mr. Owen, and his wife and children escaped in a boat, and have arrived at Burketown.

Mr. Hall was a New Zealander, and was formerly assistant at the Weipa mission, Cape York. He had been in charge of Mornington Island mission since it was opened.

Latest news received this morning shows that the position is evidently serious. The mission was besieged for 10 days by the whole of the blacks. Mrs. Hall and Mrs. Owen had to use firearms to help in driving off the blacks. The police are now taking all the necessary steps to cope with the position. The names of the suspected murderers have been obtained, and further inquiries and investigations are being made.

Mr. Bleakley, Protector of Aborigines, says that the place to which the missionaries escaped was evidently Truganini, the A.U.S.N. company's landing place, about five miles below Burketown, on the Albert River.

No explanation is forthcoming as to the cause of the attack. By all reports, excellent progress has been made in civilising the natives. In 1916 the Chief Protector of Aborigines visited the mission, and a few months ago the Governor inspected it in the steamer John Douglas. During the whole four years of the mission's existence there have been nothing in the reports received that would indicate anything but the most peaceful and friendly disposition on the part of the natives towards the superintendent and his family. Mr. Hall moved freely among them, and for nearly six months prior to Mr. Owen's appointment Mr. Hall and his family were alone at the station. In his report for 1916 Mr. Hall stated that the behaviour of the natives was exceedingly good.

It was on May 10, 1914, that the missionaries first landed at Mornington, and some time was spent in exploring the island, and selecting a site for the station. Eventually the mission opened where the Appel channel, which separates Denham Island from Mornington, would serve as a good harbour. The majority of the 200 natives have visited the mission at intervals, and a number took almost permanent residence there, having been set to work in clearing the land, getting timber, etc. They had taken kindly to industrial training. The school had been regularly maintained, with 21 names on the roll.

Mr. Hall was 36 years of age, and had previously served four years at Arakun mission, in the Archer River group, Gulf of Carpentaria. Mr. Walter Owen, his first assistant, who was slightly wounded, had had some years' experience of mission work. He joined Mr. Hall at the beginning of this year.

The Presbyterian Mission station on Mornington Island was established in 1913, when the Rev. Robert Hall was appointed superintendent. It is the fourth and most recent station of an extensive mission which has been conducted by the Presbyterian Church for the past 25 years on the eastern coast of the Gulf of Carpentaria, the other three stations being at Mapoon, in the north of Cape York, Weipa, and Aurukun. Both the latter are successively further south, whilst Mornington Island is situated in the far south of the gulf. It is the largest of the Wellesley Islands, and is mountainous and practically unexplored. To reach Burketown would entail about 60 miles sail. Before proceeding to Mornington from Weipa Mr. and Mrs. Hall visited Sydney in 1913, and some time after their arrival there they were joined by Mr. and Mrs. Owen, who were appointed to assist them. It is understood that the aborigines of Mornington were found to be considerably less tractable than those on the mainland. The tragedy which is now reported is the first occurrence of the kind in the history of the mission during the quarter of a century of its existence. Those in charge of the mission stations are not armed, and civil as well as ecclesiastical authority is exercised by the superintendent, who acts as magistrate on behalf of the Government.

It was stated yesterday by Mr. W. Woods, general treasurer of the Presbyterian Mission, that the mission to the Gulf of Carpentaria had met with extraordinary success in its civilising influence, so much so that around the stations on the mainland they had been for some years settling married native couples on small areas of land, on which houses were built for them. They were very successful in their agricultural undertakings, the produce being taken for disposal to Thursday Island in a lugger belonging to the mission, which plied between the various stations. At Weipa, Mr. Woods added, they had two full brass bands, composed respectively of native men and women.

NEED FOR ECONOMY.

MINISTER'S REPLY TO CRITICISMS.

Replying yesterday to a leading article in that day's issue of the "Herald," under the heading "Reform and Retrenchment," the Assistant Treasurer (Mr. Fitzpatrick) stated:—"The Government is taken to task for preaching economy and practising extravagance. In commenting upon statements by Mr. Beeby, who, the article states, boasted that the Government had already effected many economies, that Minister was reported to have admitted that these economies had been practised at the expense of the Education Department and the Public Health Department, which had been stinted. As a matter of fact, in both these cases the departments this year have had placed at their disposal larger sums of money than during 1916-17. The Public Health Department was voted £1,441,842 in 1916-17. This year the vote is £1,509,098. Take again the Education Department. In 1916-17 it was voted £1,995,753; this year the vote is £2,091,195. These increases are not very considerable, but at the same time they are increases. The demand is being made for the stoppage of Public works, and attention is called in the article to what is termed the greatly-swollen Department of Lands. We are asked whether any economies can be effected there. It may be stated in this connection that a large proportion of the expenditure which has been incurred, apart from the cost of administration and so on, has been the result of the operation of the system inaugurated in connection with the finding of land for returned soldiers, and some proportion, at any rate, of the increased expenditure which has resulted, or will result, will be made good by the Federal Government in due course. As far as Public works are concerned, a very appreciable reduction has been made this year as compared with last year; while during last year, during only half of which period the National Government was in power, an appreciable reduction was made on that of the preceding year. In regard to a reduction of men, i.e., employees of the Public Service, that problem is being dealt with through the medium of the commission appointed by the Government. In view of the fact that the Government has thus appointed a commission to deal with the case of men who have votes, and not with the case of works, which have no political votes, the sneer at 'the scheme of retrenchment as conceived by political Governments' is, in this case at any rate, absolutely unmerited. If, before the Royal Commission, the only evidence up to the present has been evidence referring to the grievances of members of the Public Service, the Government cannot be held responsible. It is naturally supposed that the Royal Commissioner, who has practically only just started on his weary way, will in due course travel along those tracks which lead to the departments, and will in this way be made acquainted by practical experience with the conditions operating there. It may well be left to him to decide later what retrenchment in this particular direction is warranted."

[The Acting Treasurer fails to understand why we should have taken the Government to task for not practising economy. What is the economy which the Government has practised? In four months of 1916, July to October inclusive, the opening four months of the financial year, the expenditure on Government account, as distinct from interest on loans and on the business undertakings, was £2,286,820. This year the Government expenditure during the corresponding four months was £2,363,511. In round figures the expenditure on that account has gone up £77,000. It is not a great amount, but is it economy? Mr. Fitzpatrick denies that the Education Department and the Public Health Department have been stinted. Mr. Beeby says they have been. As to Public works it was expressly stated in our criticism that there had been economy in Public works, but that that economy had been forced on the Government by inability to get loan money. As to the personnel of the Service we gather from Mr. Fitzpatrick's statement that the duty of determining what retrenchment is necessary has been delegated by the Government to the Royal Commissioner. Mr. Fitzpatrick is silent on the hint of additional taxation given by his colleague. Some further enlightenment is warranted.]

ORGANISATION.

AUSTRALIA'S ONLY HOPE.

PRODUCTION MUST INCREASE.

MR. HUGHES OUTLINES SCHEME.

"The war has taught us many lessons, by which, if we are wise, we shall profit. It has made clear that an unorganised nation cannot compete with an organised nation, nor an unorganised industry with one that is organised; that there is a direct and intimate relation between industrial and national welfare; that any policy which disregards this relation stands condemned."

Such was the text on which Mr. W. M. Hughes, Prime Minister of Australia, based a carefully prepared address to a large number of representatives of the commercial and industrial interests of Sydney yesterday. The occasion was a luncheon at the Town Hall, under the auspices of the Chambers of Commerce and Manufactures. After dealing with the urgent need for the organisation of Australian industries, in order to liquidate the comparatively enormous sums which the war has cost the Commonwealth, Mr. Hughes outlined what he claimed to be a comprehensive and practical scheme for the development and co-ordination of the primary and secondary industries of the Commonwealth.

Under the presidency of Mr. W. T. Willington, chairman of the Chamber of Manufactures, the vestibule of the Town Hall was fully occupied with prominent business men of the city. Amongst the prominent guests on either side of the Prime Minister were the Lord Mayor, Messrs. Denison Miller and J. Russell French, Sir Allen Taylor, Messrs. William Brooks, A. K. Trethowan, O. E. Hunt, and H. Y. Braddon, Ms.L.C.

Mr. Willington proposed "Our Guest." He said they all hoped Mr. Hughes, whose burdens were increasing rather than decreasing, would soon be restored to health. (Applause.)

PRIME MINISTER'S SPEECH.

The Prime Minister spoke for an hour and a half, under peculiar restraint. He was obviously far from his usual self. He made only a passing reference, at the beginning of his speech, to the military situation of the war.

"We meet," said Mr. Hughes, "under circumstances which are a startling commentary on the vicissitudes of national life, and the uncertainties that surround our destiny. Who could have said three years ago that we should be seated here to-day after having demonstrated in an unparalleled way the resources of our Empire, and having confronted our great enemy by an array of force which might well have conquered the world, and yet, we meet under the shadow of the greatest disaster which has ever overtaken the Allies since the war began. No greater evidence of the power of the enemy could be given than the debacle of Italy. But the military situation deserves and must have ample consideration and treatment, apart from our object in meeting here to-day. It will get that consideration in due course. (Applause.)

WE MUST ORGANISE.

"When war broke out," he went on, "Germany was organised industrially and nationally; for peace and for war, or rather for economic and commercial war, as well as for war commonly so called. Her organisation rested upon a national basis; it was directed towards the development not only of the industries of Germany, but of the power of Germany—every step towards the development of trade, every improvement in industry, contributed to the expansion of Germany's national power. Britain was not organised at all, industrially or nationally, except as a naval Power, and this organisation was a thing apart from her industrial life. The results of the two policies are only too clearly shown by the relative industrial and general progress of the two countries, and by our Empire's hair-breadth escape from national destruction. Germany's industrial progress during the last 25 years has been extraordinary. Before the war she was outstripping all other countries, even the United States of America, and in another decade her peaceful conquest of the world would have been complete. The secret of her success was organisation—industrial, commercial, and financial—all resting upon and actively supported by the full strength of the national resources—a closely woven network which covered the whole sphere of her economic activities, both in the home and foreign markets, and had its roots in the vitals of the nation itself. Her success in foreign markets was a convincing proof of the efficiency of her methods. Germany's whole industrial, commercial and financial organisation was directed to the capture of the foreign market. Her turnover actually increased by six times in 40 years. Her share in the world's trade in 1870 was three milliards of marks, in 1890 eight milliards, and in 1910 18 milliards. From 1870 to 1911 German exports rose from 1300 to 8100 millions of marks. We know from our own experience in the metal industry the extent to which German domination of the economic world in certain directions had gone. It is then no exaggeration to say, as things were going, that in another 10 years organised Germany would have wrested the trade supremacy of the world from the hands of unorganised Britain; reduced Russia and Italy to economic servitude, and bestrode the commercial world like a Colossus.

OUR OPPORTUNITY.

"Destiny has now given us a great opportunity," he said. "We have had time to realise how narrow was our escape from economic vassalage, and have witnessed the wonders, the miracles, achieved by Britain through organisation for war.

"As for ourselves, it is not too much to say that without organisation we should have been undone. Industrial, commercial, and financial disaster would have been our lot. By organisation our wheat, wool, butter, metals, and other products, the value of which falls for this year not far short of £100,000,000, have been successfully disposed of. Organisation is a worker of miracles. Turned against us, as it was by Germany, it nearly destroyed us, but in our hands it has been both sword and shield, and proved our salvation. Shall we with all these evidences before our eyes, with all that past failures and present successes have taught us of the value of and necessity for organisation, sit with folded hands doing nothing until inexorable circumstances destroy us?

PROBLEM OF FINANCE.

"The financial burdens imposed by the war are very heavy indeed, and are increasing every day," continued Mr. Hughes. "We have borrowed millions of money; taxation has been greatly increased. We are spending about £80,000,000 on war this year. That is to say, the war is costing us roundly an amount about equal to the value of the wool clip, the wheat crop, and the base metals output, even at the present high prices. We can not afford to pay such an amount out of our income, so we are forced to resort to loans. We are borrowing the greater portion of this huge amount within the Commonwealth, but it is most important to note that we could not raise one quarter of the sum needed were it not that Britain has bought our wool, wheat, and metals, and advanced us the money, although only a portion of some of these products has been yet transported oversea—the great bulk of this £80,000,000 is spent in Australia. We are most of us living on this money now. It circulates amongst all classes. To this fact is due our prosperity. But for selling our goods to Britain, and getting the money, despite our inability to deliver the goods, conditions in Australia would be very different.

ESSENTIAL CONDITIONS.

"I will state what, in my opinion, are the essential factors of such an organisation as is necessary for our progress," he went on. "It must rest upon a national basis; it must be comprehensive in scope, dealing with every phase of primary and secondary industry, from production right through to consumption or sale; it must regard the welfare of the industry and of the nation, and not merely of the individual. The scheme of organisation we adopt must be suited to our environment. We are part of the British Empire. We are 5,000,000 people, living within a stone's throw of 1000 millions. Nationally and economically these facts condition our national and economic policy. It is obvious that we must look to the oversea markets to take the bulk of our primary products, and as time passes more and more of our manufactured products also. There are great possibilities for us in the markets of the East. But it is clear that to develop export trade something more than mere production of a commodity has to be considered, and here the organisation which depends upon individual efforts, and not upon those of the industry and of the community, must certainly fail.

LABOUR'S PART.

"The effective organisation of industry is as essential to the welfare of labour as it is to that of capital. The interests of labour are served by regular employment at high wages, and it is obvious that it is to the benefit of labour that conditions should exist that make these possible. Employment cannot be regular unless there is a regular and sufficient demand for goods, and this demand is only possible in an organised community. The rate of wages depends upon the amount of wealth produced. Wages can be increased only if the production is increased; there is no other way. This limitation is obvious and absolute, and does not arise from the capital-

National Library of Australia http://nla.gov.au/nla.news-page1262705

little system, but is independent of it. The wages of a man under any system, under individualism or socialism of any type, must necessarily be limited by the amount produced. The doctrine preached, that the workers can benefit by producing as little as possible for the highest possible wages, is stupid as well as pernicious. Experience proves that where production per capita is greatest wages are highest. Conversely, where wages are highest production per capita is greatest. In countries employing primitive methods production per capita is very low, and wages correspondingly so. Only by increasing the amount of wealth produced with a given quantity of labour-power can a progressive high wage standard be maintained. This involves the adoption of the most modern plant and scientific methods of production.

BETTER UNDERSTANDING ESSENTIAL.

"It is to the interest of labour and capital that modern up-to-date machinery and scientific methods of production should be adopted, but these in themselves will not ensure the economic welfare of a country. Behind the machine is the man; labour is the great factor in production, and unless there is not only continuity of industrial operations but cordial relations between labour and capital schemes of organisation and scientific methods can hardly prove successful. How to bring about a better understanding between labour and capital is the great problem, world-wide in its scope, which we must understand and if possible solve. Any scheme of organisation must fail unless it secures the co-operation of labour as well as of capital. I want employers to realise one great fact, that perhaps owing to recent events they may be inclined to overlook. Organised labour is here, and it is here to stay. It has met with a reverse, but that was because it has permitted the control of its affairs to pass into the hands of extreme and intolerant men. There is a lesson for all of us in the recent strike. What has happened to labour will happen to any body of men who, having power, use it unjustly, and consider not what is best for the community but only that which is best for themselves. Labour suffered a reverse because it abandoned high ideals, and forgot that with great power there go great responsibilities. But, while we remind it of its duties, we must not on the other hand forget that it has rights which we must conserve. If any scheme of organisation is to be successful it is essential that labour should be positively assured that under the guise of greater efficiency a policy of sweating, of speeding up his work and cutting down his wages, is not really meant."

WORK MUST BE DONE.

The strike was a revolt by one section of labour—an attempt by those to whom had been entrusted duties vital to the welfare of the community to starve or coerce the community. Whether it was a capitalist or unionist that revolted—the community would do the work itself. (Applause.) The rights of the community were supreme, and that was one of the great lessons we could learn from the recent strike. (Applause.) He could not help feeling amused when he heard many of his old friends talking of the manner in which the strike came, as they said, to an unhappy termination. Those people should know, if any should know, that the strike was broken by unionists. (Applause.) If they went on to the wharfs he would guarantee they would find that five out of 10 men, even six out of every ten, working there were members of the industry, if not of that union of some other union. (Applause.) The economic pressure was too great—the work of the community had to be carried on. (Applause.)

SCHEME OUTLINED.

He would first set out the scheme in broad outlines:—(1) The unit of the scheme would be the association representing each industry—primary and secondary. That would be composed of all the producers or manufacturers of an industry forming themselves into an association. (2) There would be a general council of commerce and industry, composed of representatives of the various associations. (3) There would be a department of Commerce and Industry, and a Minister for Commerce and Industry. A first-class business man would be appointed as permanent head of this department. There would be joined with him other experts representing primary and secondary industries. (4) The Science and Industry Bureau, placed on a permanent basis, and thoroughly equipped and staffed, would be an integral part of the organisation, and be at the disposal of the Department of Commerce and Industry, and of the various industrial associations. (5) Trade representatives would be appointed in the principal oversea markets.

The object of the association would not be political or general, but economic, and confined within the limits of its particular industry. Its function was not to produce (that would remain in the hands of the individual as at present), but to consider and advise upon all the circumstances of the industry, including that of production, distribution, sale, and finance. The association would ascertain exactly the position of the industry in relation to home and foreign markets, to promote its welfare, encourage its development, assist the individual to produce at the lowest minimum of cost, and dispose of his product so as to give the best return.

GENERAL COUNCIL.

"The functions of the general council would be both advisory and executory. It would co-ordinate the activities of the various associations, give the support of its authority and influence to proposals put forward by them for developing trade, opening up new opportunities, improving methods of production, securing financial assistance, protecting local interests, recommending necessary legislation, e.g., tariff or bonus, or whatever might be deemed desirable for the protection and expansion of industry.

SCIENCE AND INDUSTRY.

"The Government proposed to establish, on a permanent basis, the Bureau of Science and Industry, which had been in operation for the past 18 months. The best men would be appointed. They would be given ample authority and adequate financial backing. The Government proposed to link up the bureau through the technical colleges, the universities, and general schools, and in that way to influence the general outlook of the nation. (Applause.) There was the education propaganda to which they had to look for the success of the scheme. (Applause.) Production meant prosperity. (Applause.) They must first of all make the country productive. (Applause.) What he had outlined the Government was prepared to do, not in a year or two, but now. (Applause.) It was prepared to appoint experts in the oversea markets, and to lend the financial aid that was necessary to back up their efforts in every way. He was perfectly satisfied there was no salvation or hope for this country unless it was by the adoption of some such scheme. (Applause.)

TRADE REPRESENTATIVES.

"Since the bulk of their products must necessarily find markets overseas, clearly no scheme of organisation would suffice that did not provide for agencies in every part of the world where a demand already existed or could be created, for the things Australia could produce. A quarter or half a million a year spent for that purpose alone would be money well spent. (Applause.)

"In order to develop our export trade money must be spent before any return can be expected. But the individual manufacturer cannot afford the money necessary to push his products in the overseas markets, where indeed, he meets not only rivals from other countries, but also from his own.

CO-OPERATION ESSENTIAL.

"Such is the broad outline of a scheme which I commend to your earnest consideration. The war has brought to us, as to all the nations of the earth, many and grave responsibilities. We must be prepared to shoulder them. We have not only to produce more wealth to pay for the war, and to develop this, our glorious heritage, but we have to hold it for the Empire, and for our descendants. I have put this scheme of organisation before you, in the earnest hope that it will meet with your approval. I urge you to give it your earnest and immediate consideration.

BEAR THE GREAT BURDENS.

"I am satisfied," he concluded, "that only by organisation can we hope to bear the great burdens of war, and deal with the complex problems arising out of it. The scheme which I have had the honour of laying before you, combining as it does the advantages that spring from individual effort and initiative with the powerful aid of co-operation, and science, and backed by the resources of the whole community, is submitted, therefore, in the hope that it will receive your immediate and earnest consideration." (Loud and prolonged applause.)

A vote of thanks was accorded to the chairman on the motion of Mr. Hughes.

THE RAILWAYS.

VACANT COMMISSIONERSHIP.

The Cabinet will probably meet on Wednesday, primarily for the purpose of discussing the vacancy created by the death of Mr. E. Milne, as Deputy Chief Commissioner. There are now three Commissioners—Mr. Jas. Fraser, as Chief Commissioner, and Mr. J. H. Cann and Mr. H. Fox as Assistant Commissioners—and it is considered highly probable that the vacancy will not be filled. The Cabinet, however, will consult with the Commissioners before its attitude is finally determined.

350TH CASUALTY LIST.

"WOUNDED 3rd OCCASION."

Another official casualty list—the 350th—was issued to the public yesterday. It contains the names of 339 officers and men, who have been killed in action, 167 who have died of wounds, and 694 who have been wounded.

In the New South Wales section of the list, 49 men are reported "wounded 2nd occasion" and 9 "wounded 3rd occasion."

Details are as follows:—

THE RECRUITING CAMPAIGN AND CONSCRIPTION.

Mr. A. L. Blythe, chairman of a meeting of the honorary workers of the Amelioration Committee, asks for the publication of this statement of their unanimous opinion on the question of conscription versus the voluntary system:—

"The honorary workers of the Amelioration Committee, since November 4, 1915, every day from 9 till 5, have been engaged in investigating and meeting the claims of returned soldiers for monetary or other assistance. They have, to the best of their ability, thoroughly examined into the merits of every application; and, so far as the resources at their disposal allowed, have done everything that they can think of to relieve the necessities of those to whom we owe a great debt.

"Since this date 11,722 of returned soldiers have applied for assistance and advice, being about 90 per cent. of all those who have returned to New South Wales.

"These facts are stated in order to show that the honorary workers are qualified to express their opinion as to the result of the recruiting campaign and the urgency of conscription.

"They are convinced that the former has been proved to be an outrage on justice and common sense, and has in many instances been a mere subterfuge to delay or avoid the introduction of the only reasonable way of re-establishing our reputation for good faith, namely, the introduction of compulsory national service.

"They desire in a general way, without at this time going into details, to state some of the conclusions upon which this conviction is based.

"The recruiting lists, small as they are, have been swelled beyond legitimate proportions by the acceptance of many men too old, of men too young, and of men whose condition of health was far from satisfactory. This has been proved by the numbers of returned soldiers who upon examination have been found to be suffering from senility, or from physical defects which were obviously present when they were recruited. Many of these soldiers have had merely a trip to the old country and back again. Others, for whom we must all have the most respectful admiration, although too old for efficient service, have gone away at the expense of the last reserve of their waning powers, have expended that reserve in the face of the enemy, and have come back bankrupt of vitality and past all useful work. Their future welfare ought to be secured with the utmost solicitude. Others, unfortunately, as is always the case when the public conscience is moved by an irresistible wave of compunction, have taken advantage of the eagerness to obtain recruits to enlist from low motives of self-interest. We cannot deny that many have gone away with no intention, and with no capacity, to do honest service in the ranks, but with an eye to the reward they would receive when they came back again. It is known to the honorary workers on the best of evidence, the admissions of the culprits themselves, that many by all kinds of tricks deceived the recruiting and examining officers, and got away, only to be speedily returned from the old country as useless. In connection with this aspect of the question, the voluntary workers are convinced that the Repatriation Committee and the State Lands Department are pursuing a course which will lead to great injustice. These bodies do not inquire into the career of the returned soldier beyond satisfying themselves that he was recruited and went away on service, and was returned and discharged with a good character. Many of these, absent for a few months, who have really done nothing, however good their intentions may have been, are being given advances in money, and sometimes donations of land, to enable them to enter into all sorts of enterprises; whilst those who have done and suffered, have sustained wounds which have crippled them, or contracted disease which has permanently deprived them of all chance of following their previous avocation, are sometimes awarded insignificant pensions. If the country be rich enough to pay for good intentions, as well as for solid service, well and good; but let us at least know what will be done for those who have borne the heat of the day. The honorary workers hope when the repatriation scheme is established on a new basis that this anomaly will be eliminated.

"Conscription is the only remedy for these evils.

"The Amelioration Committee has always welcomed an opportunity of getting the public to scrutinise its methods by attending and observing the facts disclosed during the ordinary routine of work. These conclusions are based on the results of that daily routine, and have been endorsed by those who have been good enough to visit the office and make an inspection. They have also been supported by the reports of the doctor who has examined the cases sent to him, where a medical investigation has been deemed necessary.

"The object of the honorary workers of the Amelioration Committee in making this statement, and in seeking to give it publicity, is to declare that the experience they have acquired during the time they have been engaged in the work convinces them that conscription is the only practicable method of fulfilling the obligations of the Commonwealth."

Y.W.C.A. PAGEANT.

To-morrow evening, in the Sydney Town Hall, a pageant will be held under the auspices of the Young Women's Christian Association. The "Story of the War" will once more be presented, and this will be brought up to date.

The first part of the programme will concern itself with a procession of 360 girls in costume, representing no fewer than 21 countries in which the work of the Y.W.C.A. is a prominent feature. A physical culture display by 50 members will follow, and Miss Ruby Cole will recite, with musical accompaniment, "The Carillon," the song of the Belgians, but the event of the evening will be the "Story of the War," now made quite famous by 30 girls of the Y.W.C.A., and which on a previous occasion packed the Town Hall from floor to ceiling, and moved the vast audience to tears. The "story" begins with the signing of the Treaty of London, and the guaranteeing of the neutrality of Belgium. After the assassinations, and the forcing of the war upon Servia by Austria, events move rapidly, and the audience sees Russia coming to the help of the smaller nation. Then follows the various phases of development in correct sequence. Britannia, receiving the sword of justice, declares war, and her dominions rally round the home flag. Finally, as the story of the war unfolds itself, victory comes in full measure to the Allies, and all the nations fall to the lance as Peace enters. This wordless drama will be realistically depicted, and the silent acting of the 30 participants was on a former occasion the subject of the highest praise. It is expected that to-morrow night's performance will be even more successful, as the drama is fuller and more complete.

KILLED IN ACTION.

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Campbell, of Bombala, have received information that their son, Captain Douglas Gordon Campbell, was killed in action in France on October 21. Captain Campbell enlisted in 1914, and went to Egypt. He saw service in Gallipoli and later served in France. He was educated at the Sydney Church of England Grammar School and always took an interest in military matters. After leaving school he joined the militia. Prior to enlisting Captain Campbell was managing his father's property, Cambalong, Bombala.

THE STRIKE.

ALLEGED CONSPIRACY.

The trial of Edward John Kavanagh, Claude Thompson, Albert Charles Willis, and Arthur William Buckley, for alleged conspiracy in connection with the recent strike in Sydney was commenced in the Criminal Court, before his Honor Mr. Justice Pring, at Darlinghurst yesterday. Considerable interest was taken in the proceedings, every available seat in the court being occupied. Mr. Blacket, K.C., and Mr. Broomfield (instructed by Mr. Bathgate of the Crown Law Office) appeared to prosecute. Mr. Windeyer, K.C. (instructed by Messrs. Coghlan and Co.), appeared for Willis; Mr. Gannon, K.C., and Mr. Collins (instructed by Mr. McMahon) for Buckley; Mr. Watt and Mr. N. McGhie (instructed by Messrs. Coghlan and Co.) for Kavanagh; and Mr. Sheridan (instructed by Messrs. Coghlan and Co.) for Thompson.

Upon the indictment being read, before the accused had entered their plea, Mr. Watt said the indictment contained three counts, the first being that the accused conspired with certain persons to act in the nature of a strike; secondly, that they incited certain employees of the Commissioners, but there was nothing to show that they were the same persons as were mentioned in the first count; and thirdly, that the accused conspired to prevent the Railway Commissioners from carrying on the railway and tramway services of the State. He contended that the Crown could not be allowed to proceed on the three counts; they could elect the count on which they would proceed. Under section 370, the power of the Crown to join counts was clearly set out. There was nothing to show the offence alleged in the first and second counts was against the same persons.

His Honor: Surely all the offences are against the Crown.

Mr. Watt: I say not.

After argument, in which counsel for all the accused agreed with the contentions raised by Mr. Watt, his Honor overruled the objections. All of these counts were for conspiracy against the Crown, he said. The Railway Commissioner was part of the Crown.

All the accused then pleaded not guilty. In the empanelling of the jury, the accused exercised their right freely to challenge, Thompson exhausting his right when nine jurors had been sworn in.

Mr. Watt asked that details of the overt act, or the acts relied on by the Crown against the accused, be supplied.

Mr. Blacket said the particulars were practically the same as appeared on the depositions at the trial in the lower court. He would probably add one telegram, and undertook to give a copy to accused's counsel.

In his opening address to the jury, Mr. Blacket said the accused were charged with having instigated the strike in the first instance, and with having continued it after the men came out. This strike commenced on August 2, and continued for several weeks. It was a most serious charge against the accused. What made the matter more lamentable was that this strike, besides paralysing all the resources of the community, was brought on at the time of this great war, the outcome of which they could not see. All possible resources of this community were required to assist the nation in this war. The genesis of the strike was the opposition to conscription. On June 14, at a meeting of delegates at Kavanagh's office—Kavanagh was secretary of the Defence Committee, and remained so until the time of his arrest—a resolution was moved and passed "that Congress be empowered to call all sections of workers to act in any way Congress deems necessary, should an attempt be made to enforce conscription." That resolution was guardedly written.

Mr. Watt took objection to the opening remarks of Mr. Blacket. They were charged with doing something on July 26 and later dates. Matters now referred to occurred months before the strike took place.

Mr. Blacket said on July 26 another meeting was held, and a resolution passed. This was made on some complaint, and the matter was referred to the executive, of which Kavanagh was secretary, to take immediate action with a view to defeating the card system, the executive to have full charge of the matter. A further minute in the book showed that action was to be at once taken against the card system. There was the determination to defeat the card system. That was the first record of the challenge to the Government. The accused, he said, showed a determination to wrest the reins of government from the Ministry, and to impose on the community the will of the strike leaders. It was a challenge to the community; a challenge to the law; a challenge to the Government; and if it had been successful they would have been under the sway of the strike leaders, and would have had taken from them the liberties afforded to them by the Constitution. They felt sure that in the four accused they had obtained the ringleaders of that dreadful strike. Kavanagh was the man who delivered the ultimatum of the strike—he was the secretary—and he was the man who gave information to the Press of the strike. He was one of the instigators of the strike; he was heart and soul in it, and did what he could to promote it and keep it going. There was not a day nor an hour between July 26 and the time the men returned to work that Thompson was not busily engaged trying to bring out of employment from the railways men and women who had remained loyal to the Commissioner, even after some of them had been ordered out by accused Thompson. Mr. Blacket then quoted from speeches delivered by Willis and Buckley, stating they were parties to instigating the strike.

THE ULTIMATUM.

William John Morris, assistant secretary to the Railway Commissioners, said that on August 1 Kavanagh handed him a sealed envelope with a request to hand it to the Chief Railway Commissioner, which he did. (This letter was from the executive of the Labour Council and conveyed a resolution that unless the card system were withdrawn by August 2 the whole of the unionists would cease work. It was signed by Kavanagh.) The letter was read by the Commissioner, who instructed him to reply. (This reply intimated that the card system was in use in private employment, and could be and would be used in the railway shops. The Commissioners were treating the whole of the employees in a fair manner. There was no ground for suspicion that the men would be treated unfairly under the card system. The writer went on to point out that if the threat were carried into effect it was obvious that industry would be paralysed. They were taking a grave responsibility, and in carrying it into effect would be guilty of a serious offence against the law.)

In reply to Mr. Gannon witness stated that on August 14 the employees of the Railway Commissioner, on strike were automatically dismissed.

Detective-sergeant John Ramsay gave evidence of the arrest of Kavanagh, and the searching of Kavanagh's office, and also that of Thompson.

Replying to questions witness said Kavanagh willingly gave up the keys of his office. There was no attempt to conceal anything. Thompson's office formed part of the offices of the Railway and Tramway Association, which were visited by large numbers of people. Thompson fully explained the working of everything.

Detective William Robertson said when he arrested Thompson he said: "This warrant will have to be counteracted. You will oblige me by ringing up the Premier before executing it." He produced the papers he found on Thompson.

THE STRIKE BEGINS.

Frank Bowman Shenstone, works manager at the Tramway Workshops, said that on August 1 there were 1100 men employed at the workshops. About 20 men returned to work on the first day after the strike commenced. Work at the shops practically came to a standstill through the strike, and it was weeks before work was properly resumed. There was a regulation regarding employees leaving their work. It was not posted in the shops, but all employees were given a copy of the rules and regulations on getting work.

In reply to Mr. Watt, witness said the card system was introduced into the Randwick workshops approximately a week before the men left. It was introduced in the first section on July 20. Put shortly it was a method of registering the men's work.

To Mr. Sheridan: The men who came back after August 14 did so as new employees.

In reply to Mr. Windeyer, witness said he knew for months that the men were against the card system. Something similar to the present system was introduced and withdrawn owing to the men's opposition. The essence of the card system was the registering by sub-foremen of the time taken by men on various jobs. The system was a change in job-costing, but it was not a change in the industrial conditions of the men. He did not remember the men being informed that this was a change in the management. He did remember the reply of the railway officials to the objection by the men. It was to the effect that the railway officials insisted on the introduction of the system.

Francis Patrick Meagher, of the Tramways Department, said 3682 men failed to report for duty on August 7.

John Warren, assistant works manager at Eveleigh, said he saw between 2000 and 2500 men leave the works. About 500 or 600 men remained at work. Between a week and a fortnight after the strike commenced about 500 men came back to work. The rest remained out until the strike was declared off.

In reply to Mr. Watt, witness said he had known Kavanagh for three years. He would say Kavanagh was a fair man and moderate.

In reply to Mr. Sheridan, witness said the card system had not been introduced into Eveleigh. They had a system of time-costing at Eveleigh, but it was done on the old timesheets. Thompson had come to him on certain matters affecting the men, and he had found him moderate in his demands.

Constable W. Mackay identified the signature of Thompson on certain documents.

In answer to Mr. Sheridan, witness said he was 32 years of age, and had been 12 years in the police force. He could not say the number of persons he had seen sign a document twice in his life.

Mr. Sheridan then placed a second telegram before the witness, and cross-examined him as to the differences between the signature on the telegram and the bail bond. He admitted there was a difference in the formation of the letters, but swore that the signature was that of Thompson.

The telegrams in question read:—"Richardson, Loco., Thirroul: All loco. men cease work forthwith.—Thompson." "M'Kinney, William-street, Orange: Executive instructs call all men out forthwith.—Claude Thompson."

Four telegrams, dated August 6, sent to Parkes, West Maitland, Werris Creek, and Tamworth, and conveying the same intimation to call all railway men out, were tendered, and objected to by counsel.

Evidence was then given by the witness as to the identification of signatures of Kavanagh and Buckley.

The case was adjourned till the following day, the jury being locked up for the night.

An application for bail for the accused was refused.

STATE HOMES AT MITTAGONG.

Sir Charles Mackellar, M.L.C., hands us copy of a letter written by him in 1916, when president of the State Children's Relief Board, to Cardinal Moran in reply to misrepresentations made by Archbishop Kelly at Westmead. The facts hold good at the present day Sir Charles states. The following is the letter:—

"No doubt your attention has already been directed to the attached report of a speech delivered by his Grace Archbishop Kelly at the annual meeting of the Westmead Boys' Industrial Home. I think that it is unfortunate that the Archbishop should have allowed his enthusiasm for his own institution to betray him into making statements at once so inaccurate, so misleading, and so calculated to destroy the confidence of his co-religionists in the administration of my board's State Homes at Mittagong; and whilst I have no desire to complain, I think that it is as well that you, as the head of the Catholic Church, should be made aware of the truth, at any rate, so far as it concerns the spiritual welfare of the Catholic children who are under the care of my board. I may say that the whole of the children at Mittagong, both Catholic and Protestant, are under the control of a gentleman who was my nominee for the office, and who is himself a Roman Catholic. Besides this, each home for Catholic children is under the direct management of a Catholic officer. It will be seen by this that every effort is made to give the lads the religious training which is so essential for the reformation of lads of this character.

"His Grace Archbishop Kelly paid a visit to the homes, and left the following memorandum on record:—'Having been shown round grounds and through the dining halls, dormitories, etc., the Archbishop feels happy in congratulating the official staff upon the system for improving the boys, and for providing for their comfort. He feels impressed with a gratifying sense of admiration for the material equipment for the industrial treatment of boys.'

"If anything, the conditions have been improved generally since then, so that the justification for these remarks still remains. If then what he saw pleased him to such an extent as regards the material welfare of the children that he felt impelled to leave this very high eulogium on record, he must have been equally gratified with the care taken as regards their spiritual welfare (speaking now specially of the children of his own flock.) He had just administered the sacrament of confirmation to all the children eligible in the homes, and as Bishop, he had, of course, to satisfy himself that they were properly instructed in their religion before he administered the rite. As the children are under the immediate and personal supervision of officers of their own religion, they must assuredly have the advantages, at least, of being brought up under that religious atmosphere and influence which he deems so important. As regards the actual practice of their religion, every Roman Catholic boy and girl who is of age and is sufficiently instructed, goes to his or her 'duty' (Confession and Communion) once a month, and, of course, attends his or her own church every Sunday. They are visited regularly for instruction by the priest, and have the additional advantage at certain times of instruction from the Marist Brothers (whose Monastery is quite contiguous to the homes) and the Sisters. Surely nothing more could be done for them in this direction even by their parents, or if they were in a purely sectarian institution.

"The discipline of the institution was referred to by the Archbishop as being in effect little different to that of a prison. Now if there is one attribute making for successful reformation which the department has ever striven after in its treatment of children in these institutions, it is that the whole system shall be as unlike the old method in its attempts at reformation as it is possible to have it. Barrack-like buildings have been superseded by cottages, bright with their own gardens and replete with every comfort suggesting 'home.' The officials approach the home idea altogether, in that a man and wife (mother and father) are in charge of each cottage. No uniforms are worn by officials or children, no bolts, bars, locks are visible or allowed, and the children are given the greatest amount of liberty compatible with proper order and discipline. They go to the Public school from their respective homes, to their various avocations at the farm, workshops, etc., at distances of a quarter to half a mile absolutely unattended by any official. Where, then, is the semblance even of prison discipline? But, of course, all this and much more should be known to the Archbishop from the published annual reports of the department, which he was most probably possessed of, seeing that he made quotations from at least one of them.

"His Grace the Archbishop is reported to have stated that the Industrial Farm Home for Boys at Mittagong, which is under my control, was costing the State £20,000 a year, a large portion of which was paid in salaries. The actual cost of the Boys' Homes at Mittagong for the past year was £5653 16s 7d, of which £1724 18s 8d represents the salaries paid."

EDUCATION DEPARTMENT'S REPLY.

The Education Department has supplied the following information with regard to the comments of Archbishop Kelly on the State institutions for children at Parramatta, Gosford, and Mittagong:—

Archbishop Kelly gives the number of inmates of the State institutions as, in 1914, 13,891; in 1915, 15,081; and in 1916, 16,025. The correct figures are: In 1914, 588; 1915, 626; 1916, 653. The figures given by his Grace would have been correct as far as 1914 and 1915 are concerned, and nearly so for 1916, if they had referred to all children outside the three institutions named who come within the operations of the State Children's Board, and are made up (1) of children boarded out to foster parents, (2) children boarded out with their own mothers, (3) children registered under the Children's Protection Act, (4) children in licensed institutions (under the Infant Protection Act), (5) children engaged in street trading (such as selling newspapers), (6) children released to their parents on probation, and (7) children ... formances. The cost, moreover, of the three institutions named is not £150,000. The total cost for last year was £19,862. The sum of £156,000 represents the total expenditure of the State Children's Board on the whole of its various activities, the maintenance of children boarded out to foster parents and their own mothers, the relief of destitute widows and deserted wives, the maintenance of mothers and babies, delicate, crippled and delicate children, feeble-minded children, as well as the cottage homes. Further, at the Parramatta Home for Girls, to which Archbishop Kelly specially refers, the fourth "R," religion, is not left out as described. The Roman Catholic girls, for example, who number 28 per cent. of the whole, are visited by the priest for religious instruction weekly, and by the sisters of the convent weekly. They attend church regularly, and they have their morning and evening prayers under the guidance of a Catholic member of the staff. The girls of other religious denominations receive religious instruction in the same systematic way, and the efforts of the visiting clergy are ably supported by the members of the staff of the institution. The result of the training given at this home is seen in the large proportion of girls, who, after leaving it, become respected members of the community. Archbishop Kelly's statistics are incorrect to this extent: The 16,025 children he refers to shrink in actual fact to 653 children, and the money expended from £150,000 to £19,862.

V.R.C. CARNIVAL.

NOTES AND ANTICIPATIONS.

(BY OUR SPECIAL REPORTER.)

MELBOURNE, Monday.

The V.R.C. spring reunion will be continued at Flemington to-morrow, and the crowded state of the city bears evidence of the great interest centred in the contest for the Melbourne Cup, the visitors including well-known sportsmen from all parts of the Commonwealth and New Zealand. There was a slight rainfall this morning, but the weather cleared up about noon, and there was not sufficient moisture to adversely affect the going, which, if there is no more rain in the meantime, should be in excellent condition.

The programme will be run through as under:—

Cup Hurdle Race, 12.30.
Railway Highweight Handicap, 1.10.
November Nursery Handicap, 2.10.
Melbourne Cup, 3.30.
Cup Steeplechase, 4.10.
Van Yean Stakes, 4.50.

The Cup Hurdle Race indicates a large field, and the most likely to figure prominently in the contest are Lord Grey, Dunacles, Cordelier, Narahquong, and Affinitis; and Dunacles, Affinitis, and Cordelier may get home as named.

A large field is foreshadowed for the Railway Highweight Handicap, and the race seems very open. The chances of Satin Bird, Deneb, Hopric, Ample, and Luteplayer appear the most attractive; and the judge may declare for Satin Bird, Ample, and Luteplayer.

Almoner, Outlook, Fitness, Eusebius, and King of the Sea should have the settlement of the Nursery Handicap among them, and the honours may be divided by Fitness, Eusebius, and Outlook, unless separated by King of the Sea.

The penalties incurred by Thana and Cagou for the Melbourne Cup should put them out of court, but Lanius, with the steadying weight of 8st 3lb, promises to be one of the hardest to beat. The Fortune Hunter is not attractive, and the same may be said of Colbert and Wallace Isinglass. Lingle's display in the Hotham Handicap on Saturday gained him many friends for the big race, and he should give a good account of himself. The next to strike the eye with winning prospects is Westcourt, who is in great heart. Ranger should be nicely suited with 7st 12lb, but Bronzetti will have to improve greatly on his Derby running to have any chance with 7st 10lb. Rael Locin appears to have an outside chance, and with the minimum weight, Chrome, who is a stable mate of Lanius, must have a chance. A great battle may be expected, in which Lanius, Lingle, Westcourt, The Ranger, and Chrome should figure in the fighting line when the final effort is demanded, and the numbers may be hoisted for Lanius, Westcourt, and Lingle, unless the light-weighted Chrome upsets calculations.

Booligal, Highview, Tinto, Sederick, and Sylvan Lass read as well as anything in the Cup Steeplechase, and Booligal, Sederick, and Sylvan Lass may pass the post in order.

The afternoon's sport winds up with the Yan Yean Stakes, in which the brunt of the battle may fall to Yandil, Red Signal, Duverney, and Perform, and Duverney, Red Signal, and Perform may fill the situations.

Cosmos is an unlikely starter in the Melbourne Cup, and whether King's Bounty runs in that race is still undecided.

Lavendo's scratching for the Cup is due to soreness.

Very little business was transacted this evening on the Cup.

The Sydney jockey K. Bracken is suffering from ptomaine poisoning, contracted on Sunday. He is in a private hospital, and will be unable to ride Cagou in the Melbourne Cup.

CUP BETTING.

(BY OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

MELBOURNE, Monday.

At the settling over Derby day some business was transacted over the Melbourne Cup. Lanius received sound support and firmed a couple of points; Westcourt also had friends who backed him stanchly, and he also firmed a couple of points, as did Chrome and Lingle and there was also a good demand for Rael Locin and Ranger. Lanius heads the quotations about two and a half points in advance of Westcourt. Chrome is two points further back, and a point in front of Lingle; four points away comes Broken Glass, three in advance of Rael Locin, with The Ranger five points away.

VICTORIAN TRAINING NOTES.

CAULFIELD.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

There was a strong wind blowing from the north this morning and it steadied the horses the last couple of furlongs in their work. It was a very quiet morning and in marked contrast to some cup eves. There was little or no interest taken in the work done. The sand was the track in use, and it was fairly fast. Rael Locin went with the wind up the side for four furlongs in 51½s. Whitefield had the assistance of the wind for three furlongs in 36½s, and Wyadra and Tongkah went to the winning post for a furlong more in 55s. Omaha dashed off two furlongs in 23½s. Semi Blue, Cetigne, and Bronzetti, were let off with easy tasks. Lord Bobadil, who was lame, half paced. Kongorogan sprinted four furlongs in 53½s, and others to go that distance were Lady Kes in 52½s, and Secret Service and The Fortune Hunter in 53½s. Sederick scott negotiated three fences in good style. Tinana went a long way at a strong pace, and Western Knight ran a mile in 1m 53½s. Ranger (Kelly) went off slowly, and ran his first five furlongs in 1m 4½s, and mile in 1m 46s. Woolpagerie picked him up at the last five furlongs of it in 1m 5½s, but he was of no use to Ranger, who went well.

FLEMINGTON.

LANIUS SPURTS WELL.

It was windy, dusty, and threatening rain this morning, when the big sand track was good if not fast going, but there was not a great deal of galloping attempted. Westcourt, who looked very fit, and moved freely, did some useful pacing on the tan. Killion and Beltane ran five furlongs in 1m 7s, while The Toff strode over the same ground at a rather over-even time pace. Ample was similarly employed. Biplane, evidently none the worse for his race in the Derby, was let off lightly. Cagou ran a mile, and moving well throughout did the last 6 furlongs in 1m 20s. Colbert and Modesdo did some useful pacing on the tan, where Thana was likewise occupied. Wallace Isinglass, after striding along, improved his pace for 6 furlongs in 1m 23½s. Satin Bird ran 5 furlongs in 1m 6½s. Lanius (H. Cairns), who had the wind at his back, looked to be going comfortably within himself, and kept well out on the track, while leaving Accrington over half a mile in 50s, a decidedly pleasing performance. Chrome, who looks very well after his race on Saturday, was let off lightly. Sir Amyas and Fantarie were pacing, and Marcullus and Wishing Cap were outside of even time for half a mile. Broken Glass and Purple Cross ran the last 6 furlongs of a mile in 1m 24s, and Almo was going on the tan at about three-parts pace.

Riccarton Welter Handicap of 400 sovs, 1m.—Sedd el Bahr, by Varco—Showano, 9st 2lb, 1; Devotion, 8st 8lb, 2; Glendower, 8st, 3. Seventeen started. Won by a head, three-quarters of a length between second and third. Time, 1m 45 3-5s.

IRELAND.

MELBOURNE DEMONSTRATION.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

It is estimated that fully 100,000 people attended a demonstration at the Richmond racecourse to-night to discuss the Irish situation. The demonstration was presided over at the main platform by Archbishop Mannix, and was held under the auspices of the H.A.C.B.S., the Australian Catholic Federation, the Irish National Foresters, and other bodies.

The following resolutions were carried with enthusiasm:—

1. That whereas Great Britain is the guardian and champion of small nations, and whereas she and her allies have entered upon the present war in Europe to vindicate against the might of alien aggressors the right of small nations to live their own lives, this mass meeting of Irish Australians requests that the rights of the Irish nation be acknowledged and respected, and that in the event of the failure of the Irish Convention now sitting duly accredited representatives of Ireland be invited to any international conference which may assemble to end the present war and to provide for lasting and universal peace.

2. That this mass meeting of Irish Australians stands for an undivided Ireland, and protests against any proposal that would place any part of Ireland outside the control of the British Parliament, which we hope and pray may be soon opened in the capital of Ireland.

3. That this meeting of Irish Australians requests the British Government, the representatives of a Christian people, to grant permission for the exhumation of the remains of the victims of the Dublin tragedy of Easter week, 1916, so that they may be given Christian burial in consecrated ground.

Dr. Mannix, who addressed the gathering as "men and women of Australia and friends of Ireland everyone," said that they were present first to vindicate in Australia the right of free speech. Young men were being called to Europe to avenge the wrongs of small nations, but there was a small nation whose wrongs were more ancient than those of Belgium. That was one of the reasons they had gathered.

The men of Ireland to-day, he added, were determined that the paramount consideration in the judgment of every question should be: "Did it or did it not serve Ireland?"

VICTORIAN ELECTIONS.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

According to the nominations lodged to-day there will be contests in all but about a dozen constituencies at the State elections on November 15. Only one Minister, Mr. Lawson (Castlemaine) has been given a walkover, while the leader of the Economy party, Mr. Bowser (Wangaratta), the Chairman of Committees, Mr. Mackey (Gippsland), were also unopposed. Mr. Livingstone, Minister for Mines and Forests, is expected to have a close fight at Gippsland South, while Mr. D. Gray, Secretary to the Cabinet, will be hard pressed at Swan Hill.

MELBOURNE SHEEP SALES.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

In the live stock market to-day 13,100 fat sheep were yarded, including a reduced proportion of prime sorts. The greater portion of the yarding was of shorn sheep, but few pens of sheep in the wool being forward. There was also a greater supply of ewes than for some time. The attendance of buyers was only moderate, and the demand was rather irregular, prices for prime fluctuating a good deal, with an easier tendency throughout, whilst secondary sorts, owing to lack of competition on the part of graziers, were decidedly lower. Quotations:—Crossbred wethers, prime 33/ to 37/6, extra to 40/, good 28/6 to 32/, second 26/ to 28/3, inferior from 22/, with woolly sorts from 30/ to 40/, a few to 53/1, odd 46/; crossbred ewes, prime 30/ to 33/, extra to 36/6, good 27/ to 29/, seconds 24/3 to 26/, inferior from 19/9, woolly 32/ to 42/, odd pens to 44/9, odd ewes to 47/; merino wethers, prime 29/ to 33/, extra to 35/, good 25/ to 27/, seconds 22/9 to 24/, inferior from 19/, woolly 35/ to 39/6, a few pens of extra 50/ to 53/1, merino ewes, good to prime 24/3 to 26/, inferior 18/6, woolly 30/3 to 36/9. Fat Lambs: 1500 were entered, the bulk being of firm, good to prime quality. The demand was fairly strong for the greater part of the day, and late values were maintained until late in the day, when prices eased for all classes. Graziers operated very cautiously, and to a very limited extent in secondary sorts. Quotations:—Prime, 25/3 to 31/6, extra to 33/11, odd pens to 34/6; good, 22/ to 24/6; seconds, 19/6 to 22/; inferior, from 14/, with shorn from 16/ to 20/6.

PROTECTION OF RECRUITING SERGEANTS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—When I became a recruiting sergeant a short time ago I received, through the post, several anonymous letters, threatening me that my life would be taken if I did not desist from advocating recruiting. Since then I have had many brushes with men who if they are not actually members of the I.W.W. are closely connected with it, and ready to advocate its principles, even to "direct action," in carrying out acts of violence on law-abiding men who, at great cost and inconvenience to themselves, are endeavouring to keep the Union Jack flying.

Well, this threat to take my life has not succeeded so far, but it was not for the want of attempting it that failed them, for, on Tuesday night last, whilst travelling on recruiting duty between Wagga and Sydney, I was set upon by three men who, recognising me, took the opportunity to set upon me and do me bodily harm, leaving me, after an unequal contest, semi-conscious with a fractured arm, to be picked up later by the railway officials from the floor of a deserted carriage compartment.

This is the treatment I got after having fought for my country, and am still doing, by encouraging others to do likewise, and what I want to know is "what protection" is the Government going to offer to such as I, who am attempting to carry out the duty which it has so sadly neglected to do, namely to reinforce the Australian army at the front.

Plenty of evidence is available to prove that there are bands of disloyalists still in our midst and are actively engaged in a propaganda of destruction which is assuming alarming proportions.

What, I ask, can be said for the failure of the Government to protect us from enemies within, and what compensation can those who do suffer from the Government's neglect, expect to receive? I am, etc.,

T. O. SULLIVAN,

FINANCIAL.

MR. HUGHES'S RE-ORGANISATION SCHEME.

The Prime Minister launched his trade reorganisation scheme before members of the Chambers of Commerce and Manufactures yesterday afternoon. The speaker received an attentive hearing, but just how far his proposals gained acceptance at the hands of his hearers it is not possible to conjecture. In the earlier portion of his statement, Mr. Hughes emphasised the necessity for trade organisation as a post-war essential. Here he was absolutely convincing. We must do something more than we are doing to-day, and much more than we did prior to the outbreak of hostilities. The doing of this is going to cost money. That, too, must be recognised and admitted. The only part remaining is as to whether Mr. Hughes's means are sound. He proposes to create a department of trade and industry, with a Minister at its head. They have already done something of that sort in England. He further proposes that each trade, primary and secondary, should form an association in each State with a central council, the latter body to be the nexus between the trade and the department, just as the department is the nexus between the aggregation of councils and the Government. The Prime Minister evidently had the various State wool committees and the Central Wool Committee in his mind as a pattern. The Central Council would in proper cases receive financial assistance from the Government just as the Central Wool Committee now receives such backing, and the industry would bear the cost just as the wool industry now does. As far as primary products that have a surplus for export, such as wool, wheat, butter, meats, rabbits, metals, etc., the scheme is quite practicable, and, indeed, is being carried out in its essence to-day. As to whether the same organisation is applicable to the secondary industries, e.g., boot or hat manufacturing, is a question. Perhaps those actually engaged in those industries may be able to suggest something better. What they must not suggest is doing nothing. That has been the bane of the past, and may prove our future undoing. This is a case in which destructive criticism is useless. What is wanted is something constructive. The Prime Minister also proposes to appoint trade commissioners in certain foreign markets, more particularly in the East. The obvious retort is—more jobs. But we know that Great Britain and the United States are both doing precisely this, and that before the war Germany had her trade agents in every port, and utilised them to the fullest extent. Of course, it is hopeless if we appoint men because their political colour is this or that, quite irrespective of what their business qualifications may be. The right stamp of man must be secured—or the money may better be saved. The Germans seem to have managed to secure the right men. Is it impossible that we should do the same? The Prime Minister has certainly given the producing and trading communities a good deal to think about. In bygone days the family was the unit of production and manufacture. Now it is the factory, whether it makes butter or boots. The unit of to-morrow, if Mr. Hughes's ideas prevail, will be a group of factories doing a similar class of work and operating under the aegis of the Government. In America the trust has become the unit—in Germany the kartel. Here we want neither the one nor the other, but desire to have the benefits of combination without altogether losing the stimulus of competition and individual initiative. If the Prime Minister can give us that his name will indeed be remembered with gratitude by generations yet to come.

FIFTH WAR LOAN.

The fifth war loan, or Liberty Loan, has proved a success. A preliminary estimate of the amount secured is £19,651,340. The loans raised so far have been:—

First loan, August 31, 1915	£13,389,440
Second loan, January 31, 1916	21,655,660
Third loan, September 2, 1916	23,587,420
Fourth loan, February 2, 1917	21,577,070
Fifth loan, November 2, 1917	19,651,340
Grand total	£99,860,960

This means 100 millions in a period not materially exceeding two years—a wonderful record indeed. At the same time, it must not be forgotten—as the Prime Minister pointed out yesterday—that this has been possible solely through the British Government buying and paying for our surplus produce before it was shipped.

USHER'S METROPOLITAN HOTEL.

The fourth report of the above company covers the 12 months ended August 31. It shows a net profit of £6423, which, less provision for income tax of £650 and a transfer to depreciation reserve of £1200, left £4573. The board proposes to extinguish the debit at profit and loss account of £1836, to write £1434 off preliminary and flotation expenses, leaving £1193 available. The preference dividend of 8 per cent. absorbs £759, and £433 will be carried forward.

COMMERCIAL.

THE MARKETS.

Business in heavy metals was quiet yesterday. A better business was done in shelf lines. Local manufacturers of tinware and of galvanised ironware advanced their prices considerably. Tinware was advanced by 10 per cent. to 25 per cent., the price of galvanised tubs was put up 50 per cent., and the price of galvanised buckets was advanced by 25 per cent. to 40 per cent. There was a keen demand for all harvesting material. Most of the houses were out of hay forks. Orders which were given 12 months ago had not arrived. Three-prong, straight, 5 feet, were worth 48/ a dozen; 5½ feet, 51/; 6 feet, 52/; 7 feet, 54/. Scythe blades were also very scarce, 36in. being worth 66/, and 38in. 68/. Handles, where available, were quoted at 94/ a dozen. No brass screws were available in parcels, even small lots were kept for distributers' own customers.

Jute was slow. A few branbags were sold at 5/ net to rail. Calcutta quoted 10/6, c.i.f. and e for January shipment, an impossible price. Yet the mills have the game in their own hands. Raw jute is plentiful and fairly cheap, but the mills have only a limited output owing to the supervising staff being undermanned. Many of this staff are away at the war. The output being thus restricted, the mills can obtain good prices for their manufactures, the competition to obtain the made-up goods being so keen. Some cornsacks were sold to storekeepers at 9/6 net to rails. Word was received that there would be further shipments from Calcutta this month.

The oil market was quiet. Rates were without alteration from those ruling last week.

TEA FROM JAVA.

The Dutch quarters which are attempting to induce the Commonwealth Government to allow a limited quantity of Java tea into Australia lose sight of one very important fact. While the British Government has absolutely prohibited the importation of teas grown outside the Empire into Great Britain, it has at the same time restricted the importation of Empire-grown tea. That is why India and Ceylon have been hit so hard lately. They cannot get their tea away. Occasionally freight is permitted; then the glut is relieved, and prices go up, but when the freight again grows scarce the prices become lower. One of the tea districts in India is in a parlous state, that of Travancore. The planters in that district have shipped tea to Australia on consignment to sell at practically any price, so long as it will pay the cost of production, at any price, in fact, to keep their gardens going, and that tea is here to-day and has been sold at a very cheap price. Seeing that the restriction on Java tea was made by Australia on national grounds in order to keep the trade within the Empire it is asked why should it now be relaxed to the penalising of the Indian and Ceylon grower in order that the Dutch planter may be relieved of the glut in his market.

HOMEBUSH STOCK SALES.

SHEEP.

TENDENCY EASIER.

The pennings of sheep at Homebush saleyards yesterday totalled 20,718 out of 21,906 listed. They came from 78 owners, hailing from all over the sheep districts of the State, and comprised all grades from heavy crossbreds to small lambs. At the beginning the market opened very firm, but eased slightly almost at once, as buyers were not so eager to secure supplies as to pay very heavy prices for them. Odd pens of prime, however, evoked keen competition, and brought a shade over Thursday's rates. As the day progressed it was evident that an easier tendency was arising; competition was free up to a point, but that being reached bidding dragged. Woolly sheep with good skins were rather better property than other kinds. A large lot of the full-fleeced animals, however, were burry. There were some nice-looking shorn sheep on offer, and these took the fancy of buyers, but plain-bodied and stores were rather easier, in some instances is lower. Lambs were not in heavy supply, and were sold with the sheep. The afternoon sales were somewhat irregular, but not sufficiently so to justify a drop in quotations. Amongst the noteworthy sales were:—Account Mr. F. Houston, Warialda, w, w to 44/9; J. J. Leahy, Bribaree, x w to 38/11; W. H. Bannister, Nevertire, x e to 33/5; M'Gill and Co., Narrabri, w to 31/8; C. C. Harris, Bugilbone, sh x e to 25/10; A. Bowen, Merah, sh x w to 23/; W. C. and M. E. A'Beckett, Coonamble, sh x e to 22/; Barton Bros., Wellington, w to 34/; H. von Lanbenfelde, Ungarie, w to 40/1; R. C. Garland, Wee Waa, x b to 35/5; W. H. Ryan, Cryon, e to 32/3; R. S. Falkiner, Groongal, sh x e to 32/7; J. Donohoe, Hay, sh x w to 29/4; estate T. W. Speed, Cryon, sh w to 28/10, sh x w to 28/4; V. P. Evans, Walgett, x strs to 24/7, A. Campbell, Quirindi, x w to 36/, sh x w to 25/5, e to 25/4, strs to 22/4; S. J. Fennell, Brewarrina, sh w to 30/9, avg. 29/2; Ryder and Sons, Gular, sh x w to 28/9; C. I. Evans, Walgett, e to 23/3; A. C. Reid, Walgett, w to 29/6; J. R. Fry, Boggabri, sh x e to 31/.

LAMBS.

The supply of lambs was not large, and all brought forward were sold with the sheep. Most of them were on the small side, but the best realised to about 26s, whilst the worst ranged as low as 21s.

CATTLE.

PRICES LOWER.

In all 1226 cattle, from 55 owners, were in Homebush yards yesterday, qualities ranging from heavy bullocks to cows, yearlings, and calves. An easier feeling was evident from the beginning, and buyers had the market rather in their favour from the start. By 1 o'clock the verdict was that heavy cattle were from £1 to 30s lower than last Thursday, and lighter from 10s to 15s down. Buyers were present from all round—city, suburbs, and country.

As the day went on the market grew worse, and at the close of the sales prices were from 25s to 40s a head lower, all grades participating in the drop. Noteworthy sales were:—D. H. Copland and Son, Wagga, bullocks to £24/15/; A.A. Company, Willowtree, bullocks to £26/2/1; T. Ellis, Byrock, bullocks to £26/15/; H. E. and A. V. White, Scone, bullocks to £24/12/, avg. £24/8/; executors of estate of H. A. Duncomb, steers to £20/11/; Geo. Williams, Moree, bullocks to £25/14/8; J. Gunn, Forbes, bullocks to £25/16/; J. M. L. Macdonald, Quirindi, to £20/9/; S. Anderson, Gular, bullocks to £23/15/, avg. £21; Killen and Co., Mooculta, bullocks to £23/3/, avg. £21/15/4, cows to £19/10/, avg. £18/15/5.

DAMAGED BY FLOODS.

CULCAIRN, Monday.—The Shire Council find that the damage done by the recent floods in the Billabong is greater than at first estimated. The Brooklyn Bridge, built in 1910, on the main road from Walla subdivision to Walla, will have to be completely dismantled and rebuilt with extra spans at each end. The damage done to the bridge at Culcairn on the main road to Albury is also greater than was at first estimated, the embankments and approaches being badly damaged. Other bridges in the shire also need attention.

AUSTRALIAN WEATHER.

THE "HERALD" MAP.

During the 48 hours ended at 9 a.m. yesterday a steady change in pressure distribution took place over Eastern Australia. On Saturday rather pronounced monsoonal influence predominated, and were productive of unsettled weather generally in New South Wales and the greater part of Queensland, with some light to heavy but scattered rainfall associated with thunderstorms. The decided easting made by the pressure systems since Saturday had on Monday morning brought into prominence an energetic Antarctic disturbance of "double-headed" formation. This has been attended with a general increase in temperatures, and squally and strong west to north-west winds over the south-east States. This should result in some further scattered rains, chiefly over Southern parts, with some hail likely, and local squalls, for this peculiarly shaped disturbance is frequently associated with hailstorms. A cool squally and strong southerly change forming part of the wind circulation of an advancing "high" was due yesterday in the western districts, and should later spread eastward to the coast.

OCEAN FORECAST.—Squally southerly east from Cape Borda, extending to New South Wales coast.

MINING.

Operations among mining shares on the Stock Exchange were dull and uninteresting as is usually the case on Monday. The southern Stock Exchanges were certainly not brisk, but exhibited more marked signs of movement than the local market. The day's business was represented by a handful of 15 listed transactions, mostly in tin stocks, while the remainder was scattered fairly evenly among other groups. Copper propositions provided a change after inactivity for some time, but dealing was tinged by a general weakness. Hamptons changed hands at a concession at 25/9, while Morgans, also, were somewhat lower at 30/6. The absence of speculators was distinctly noticeable in the Edna May stocks, and Centrals alone appeared on the boards. Quotations for Westonias were on a par however with those ruling at the week end. Barriers seemed to be firmly held, and satisfactory figures were realised for Norths and British. For tin-dredging concerns, healthy prices were forthcoming in most cases. Buyers of Laruts advanced to 53/, but Kampongs eased /3 to 45/9. Ratrut and Trong held out at former levels. Local tin enterprises ruled weaker and Vegetable Creek sagged to 3/5. Mammoth Molybdenite were inquired for and bought at up to 11/7½—an advance of /6.

SYDNEY STOCK EXCHANGE.

The following mining sales were listed:—

Copper: Hampden, six weeks 26/, cash 25/9; Mount Morgan, 30/4½, 30/6.

A, 97 CLARENCE-STREET, SYDNEY.

WHAT IS THIS? Does it not strike you as conclusive evidence that, after offering £100 Reward to anyone who has a Remedy other than my own (which no one has claimed) for the Total Destruction of Superfluous Hair, there are no other remedies? And that it is immaterial what you buy, it is useless as far as Superfluous Hairs and their destruction are concerned. No one has accepted my challenge, nor has one of the thousands of clients treated by me claimed the reward because "their hair has grown again." This must forcibly impress on you that there are no other permanent cures only Electrolysis, which must be done by an experienced person. I AM THE SPECIALIST OF SYDNEY. FOR SIXTEEN YEARS AT MY PRESENT ADDRESS. For further proof am willing to remove a few hairs free of charge. This treatment will convince. COME AND HAVE A CHAT. FACE MASSAGE AND ALL TREATMENTS OF THE SKIN GIVEN. MISS MAUDE MADDOCKS, 100 KING-STREET, SYDNEY. 'PHONE, 193 CITY.
